Mr. Roosevelt Sings The Same Old Song

IN HIS LATEST RADIO CROONING, Franklin D. Roosevelt sang up the same old tree. Asking for four more years of the New Deal, he intoned the same old refrain to the effect that the New Deal is liberal, that everything and everybody opposed to it or differing from it is reactionary and conservative. Wherefore it is necessary to name liberal candidates for the presidency and vice presidency. Giving no clue as to who such candidates might be, Mr. Roosevelt again tactfully approved his own third-term boom.

This resort to a worn-out camouflage about liberalism will fool few persons who have been able to sense the downward trend of the New Deal policy with its growing tax burdens, its maggot breeding of bureaucracy, its shameless profligacy and wastefulness, its utter disregard of the national solvency, its depreciation of the awful consequences which that portends and its woeful inability to get the jobless back to work. As a matter of fact, the New Deal is the truly reactionary party because it moves steadily against individual liberty and enterprise, toward a regimentation of the people, toward restriction of popular rights and privileges and toward an all-powerful nationalism similar to that obtaining in the authoritarian states abroad. For one of many conspicuous examples, it opposes the Logan-Walters measure, which would give citizens the right of appeal to the courts of justice from the arbitrary rulings of dictatorial bureaus and agencies of government.

The Republican party, stoutly opposed to that trend and vigilantly alert to the dangers it embodies, is the real liberal party and for exactly that reason. It is truly liberal because it resists all dangerous encroachments upon the civil rights of the individual and seeks to restore the government to its constitutional basis.

The New Deal liberal? Bosh! It is the very antithesis of that.

Republican Planners Act Smartly Again

UNDOUBTEDLY, for the publicity assured and as strategy serving substantial political ends besides, the Republican planners acted smartly in choosing Minnesota's young governor, Harold E. Stassen, for temporary chairman of the Republican National Convention. He is only 33 years old. At this time of Republican revival, before the convention naming the Republican candidate for president, a spokesman of Republican youth will deliver the speech striking the "keynote" of the presidential campaign.

Stassen rose to the governorship of his large state while in his early thirties. That remarkable rise and his success in the office have made him an outstanding Republican figure. He may speak for all Republican youth and also, quite especially, for the western agricultural states which are counted as essentials in GOP election calculations.

Stassen's is to be credited as a smart choice for still another reason. He is too young to become the nominee himself, no matter how arousing his speech may be. In making the selection, the convention's arrangements committee patently had in mind the constitution's flat edict that no person shall be eligible for president "who shall not have attained to the age of 35 years."

The selection is another bit of evidence that the Republican party is the party of progress and of true liberalism.

The Man with the Letter That Makes Him Laugh

ONE can play upon the whole gamut of human life with all its relationships, fears, sorrows, joys and aspirations by merely taking a walk along Baltimore street—if one will only open one's eyes for the purpose. Or it can be done by walking through any other busy thoroughfare where people congregate or are going about their daily tasks and perance their pleasures.

Here can be seen the taut, agonized face of a woman to whom some recent bereavement has left its mark. There is a young couple flush with the energy of youth and hope and freedom from care and responsibility. A middle-aged man with a furrow in his brow tells you without his saying it that he is having a hard struggle against adversity but is courageously carrying on to the best of his ability. Three young children trip laughingly by impressing you with the thought that school days are happy days indeed. Housewives carry numerous bundles with beaming eyes that report a duty done with happy anticipations in store for enjoyment of the purchases. An old man leaning heavily on a cane is seized with a cough that shakes his slender frame and you wonder, pityingly.

And there in a parked automobile is a man behind the steering wheel, waiting for some one. He is reading a letter and laughing. Something really funny is in it. His face wrinkles into a broad smile and then the laughter comes spontaneously, joyously as though he had been humoring just for it. And passers-by are attracted by his demonstration and there are smiles, which communicate to others and some even induce in an outburst of pent-up enjoyment. A dozen persons are affected by those smiles and that laughter prompted by a letter. And they are made happier by the experience which the reader, all intent upon his letter, does not notice.

A two-fold lesson comes from this little episode of the Man with the Letter. One is that a bit of mirth is worth its weight in gold. Another is that a letter can do wonders toward cheering the hearts of friends and loved ones. That should prompt one to think of those unanswered letters which might be written to serve an equally good purpose.

Mutuel Machine Betting On Upward Trend

ON THE FIRST DAY of the horse racing season in New York state, 22,470 persons attended and wagered $821,946 through the new mutuel machines which the state legalized last November.

Entry of New York to the legalized lists will skyrocket the totals of permissible race track gambling in the United States. In 1938 the fifteen states which permitted pari-mutuel betting wagered a total of $282,984,700, with California leading and Illinois, Florida, Maryland and Massachusetts close on its heels. Of this sum, the states took about $10,000,000 in taxes.

Pari-mutuel differs from the old bookie system in that wagers are made in the total pot according to the way they have laid their wagers. It goes far to eliminate the cheating and scandals which have at times accompanied race track gambling.

After trying the mutuel system Texas kicked it out a few years ago on the pretext that merchants had complained it was reducing the retail purchasing power of consumers. But the trend in this country seems to be toward this legalized form of gambling instead of away from it, which is evidence that the spirit of risk is deeply ingrained in the fiber of the American people, and when the element of sport is combined with it it becomes irresistible.

An Annual Nuisance Continues To Bedevil Us

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME will be observed in sixteen states this summer, a survey by the Merchants' Association of New York shows.

In most places the clock will be set ahead one hour next Sunday at 2 a. m., but a few cities have chosen later starting dates. Standard time will be restored September 29.

Daylight saving becomes general in New York state for the first time this year. Other states where daylight time will be observed in all communities include Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey and Connecticut.

Among the states added for the first time is Tennessee, although only Memphis has decided to observe the summer time. May 12 has been set for the tentative starting time there.

Thus an unmitigated nuisance continues to bedevil us. Daylight saving will continue to be a costly annoyance so long as it is permitted to exist in spots.

The only sensible way of observing daylight saving is by simply observing it wherever it is desired without the crazy resort to an alteration of the hands of the clock.

A new biography of George Washington makes it clearer than ever—and it was crystal clear before—that his life was absolutely stainless except for the cussing incident after the battle of Monmouth, which the book proves never happened.

Mussolini's boast that all Europe will become involved in the war recalls the remark of the French general, who said: "If Italy joins us, we'll have to send ten divisions to save her; if she joins Hitler, we'll have to send ten divisions to lick her."

Children of politicians always know when it is near election time. Daddy gathers them all about him and calls up the newspaper photographers.

To reduce, says an expert on diet, eat at least six meals a day. The worrying over how you will ever pay the food bill will probably do the trick.

The full horror of the European war has burst upon us. London propaganda broadcasts are now made in fifteen different languages.

A Rebuke for Parents

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I remember it as though it were yesterday—There'd been a little trouble at the dinner table. One of the children, the younger, had refused to eat her salad. It was just an idea, a prejudice. What did she care for vitamins? What did she care about being strong? About growing big? She wouldn't eat her salad!

So she was told that if the family went for a ride after dinner and if they stopped anywhere to buy an ice cream cone—if they did such a thing, well she wouldn't get any. Her sister and her mother and her father would get cones but there wouldn't be any for any little girl who wouldn't eat her salad! She wept a little, she screwed up her face into a horrid knot, but she said she didn't want an ice cream cone, anyway, and she DIDN'T eat that salad.

But the family went riding and did stop at an ice cream place and did buy ice cream cones. One for the mother. One for the father. One for the bigger sister. But NONE for the little girl who didn't eat her salad. The parents felt rather mean about it. They wanted to weaken but they didn't dare. Parental authority isn't so very strong these days, anyway, and parents must stick to their guns occasionally.

Fortunately the child said nothing. She made no great fuss. She must have felt rather miserable and alone in a world of careworn enemies, but she sank her little chin into two brown fists and huddled up on the back seat and stared gloomily out into the fields while the others ate their cones and chewed bitter thoughts.

Things went along like that for several miles and then the situation was saved. . . . The father, through the rear view mirror saw the older child giving looks of her cone to the silent culprit. Not every other lick, of course—that would have been too much to expect—but every seventh or eighth lick, at least. He nudged the mother and in her hasty glance she saw the elder handing over to her sister the last bit of the cone. Nothing was said, not even a whisper was passed, not a giggle broke the silence. But with those looks and that end of the cone, the younger generation had tempered discipline with mercy, and all four—including the parents—felt better.

The father and mother saw, but they didn't let the conspirators know that they had seen. Parents learn, at least, that there are times when it's better to be blind and to be dumb. That was one of those times.

Sea Fighting Is Most Important

By EDWIN C. HILL

The most thrilling news transpiring from the war—and by far the most important as affecting the outcome of the war—has come not from the land or the air but from the sea.

The daring raids of German subs in Scapa Flow. The sinking of the Courageous. That thrilling running sea-fight off the coast of Uruguay and the scuttling of the Graf Spee. The raid of the British destroyers in Norwegian waters, the boarding of the prison-ship Albatross, in old-time "boarders away" fashion, as Drake and Horatio Nelson. The sea-fights in the Skagerrak and the Kattegat. And the daily emphasized and reiterated lesson that the nation which commands the sea, and can keep that command through overwhelming superiority in the strength and number of fighting ships, is the nation which will win the war.

Lesson Driven Home

In the past five months that lesson has been driven home to the consciousness of the members of our Congress. An object lesson in Admiral Mahan's celebrated thesis on sea-power has been supplied almost every day. Therefore, we are going to have a navy, and if the habitually dilatory methods of Congress are temporarily abandoned, we shall have within three years the greatest and most powerful navy in all the world.

As Mr. Frazier Hunt remarked the other day, we are rich, proud, always right and enjoy sticking our nose in others people's business. To retain such luxuries demands an unbeatable navy. We're going to get it. By 1944 we're going to have—if slothfulness does not prevent—16 battleships, eight of them brand new, two of them 45,000 ton monsters, eight more battleships under age, quite modern, 45 magnificent cruisers, 150 destroyers, and another 150 in reserve, 56 modern submarines, eight aircraft carriers and 3,000 active navy planes.

It will be a navy thirty per cent larger than the Japanese possess.

Liberty Is Craved

Now that gangsters rule whole nations and destroy whole nations, our statesmen have finally abandoned starchy eyed faith in the essential goodness of mankind. American statesmen find that humanity today—that part of humanity which craves liberty as it craves the breath of life—is in the most perilous situation it has faced since the collapse of the Roman Empire and the rush of the pagan barbarians from Eastern Europe and Western Asia, precisely as they are rushing in now.

We have discovered that we live in a world of men, not angels. International law is no more. Every day shows it. Treaties are useless. Pledges are worthless. Force only is respected. Liberty all over the world is throttled or threatened by tyrants. And it is not safe to be a bleating lamb in a den of wolves. It is obvious that the American people will not permit our Army and Navy to be hurled against a foe unless that foe has hurled himself against us. But we have a great treasure to protect—a great treasure in our tremendous material wealth, a great treasure—the greatest of all—in the freedom of speech and written word and religious worship, such as exists nowhere else on this spinning earth.

Planes Rescue People

There is a dull red glow over the city of Hilo, Hawaii. Sprouts of flame and steam and columns of smoke arise from the crater of the volcano of Mauna Loa, active again after five years. In 1935 it flung a river of molten rock, 600 feet wide, toward Hilo, and the United States Army just barely rescued the city from the fate of Pompeii and Herculaneum by sending out Army planes to drop 600-pound bombs into the crater to divert the river of fire. The present eruption is spectacular but does not yet threaten as did the one of five years ago.

OUR OWN NATIONAL BRAIN DERBY

Johnson Praises Book by Stokes

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, April 22—In the newspaper angle of the more or less literary art, you are apt to take the many of your colleagues for granted in the niche they momentarily occupy.

There was never much doubt among the working fraternity in Washington that Tom Stokes was a top-hole reporter—and I am thinking back seven years from an intimate check-by-jowl living with that Hugh S. Johnson. If there was any lingering doubt, he went down South, left the question about WPA political philtering, and got a Pulitzer prize for his reporting after a Hopkins denial and a Senate confirmation of all that he had said.

In the field of their own profession, I doubt if there are any newsrooms anywhere as the Washington fraternity. They have developed a technique. I saw the World war methods in frequent press conferences in the draft and later in industrial mobilization. It was nothing compared with its present streamlined efficiency.

Gets It All

Practically no motion occurs and no word is whispered that this crowd doesn't get it, or perhaps its being echo, within a day or two. The server looks on in a kind of wonder and takes off his hat to craftsmanship—as I always did to Mr. Stokes.

But although I have known him both officially and in an all too scant but none the less affectionate private relationship, nobody could have convinced me without concrete evidence that he could have written his book: "Chip off My Shoulder."

This is to imply no literary aptitude in Mr. Stokes. It is probably just due to the cause for which I sometimes think I add the tight space limits of the principal outlets of both of us, Scripps Howard newspapers. In this book Mr. Stokes could, and did, set his telegraphic style and behind.

Gets True Perspective

It is a record of observation of the Washington scene through several presidencies by a kid who came here from the South as almost unconstructed Rebel and became a citizen of the whole United States. The "chip" was the patch Southern view. It went off his shoulder because he found there other views equally worthy of consideration and because he came to a typical American conclusion that the resultant of all views is something to seek—Southern, Northern, Eastern and Western views—labor views and capitalist views—Republican and Democratic views. He became disillusioned about Southern perfection and also about heroic political figures. In fact he acquired a true perspective.

This is easy enough to come to, and banal enough to say but it doesn't say it in just that way. It says, he doesn't say it at all. It sticks out at you a day or two after you have sat up most of the night reading his too absorbing book. Apart from these conclusions the book is scholarly literary composition, in the attractive rather than in the academic sense. I mean it is a well written letter from home—a sophisticated but articulate from somebody who so obviously knows his stuff.

Graft of the Game

This column isn't a book review although I sometimes think it must be so regarded from the point of view of free literature. I get it. I hope it won't stop. It seems to be one of the grafts of the game. But I am for this book because I was present at its final birth throes. I am not boosting it because I know Mr. Stokes. If I didn't know anything about the understanding of conflicting forces and ideas that produce the astonishing Washington result, and wanted to get a better understanding, I would read Tom Stokes. THE BIG LIE

Flattery Seldom Mixes with Truth, but Here's a Case
Where It Was Too Crude To Be a Good Lie

By MARTIN ROWAN

It was the night of the christening at Patsy Dan's. Ballycladdy gathered to greet the young son and heir. There was merriment and music, and a little cordial beverage went the rounds. Everyone was in great spirits.

"Children born these days are lucky in comparison to those born in my time," said Andy Joe. "Ninety years ago when I was a lad there was not a school from here to Ballycladdy and no chance of learning. That is why the people of my generation grew up without knowing B from a bull's foot. Today there is a nice school here in Ballycladdy."

And I do not know any greater boon to society than a competent humane physician."

"Who was the greatest liar in Ireland, Thady?" asked Michael Doogan.

"I have not made a penetrating study of the subject, Michael," said The Druid. "I am therefore incapable of passing judgment lest I might take the laurels from the rightful owner and put the wreath on the brow of a more incompetent brother. One must be careful you know, as there is such a thing as libel."

"Wasn't the man who composed 'The Big Lie of Ireland' the greatest liar known to man, Thady?" asked Michael.

"That is a moot question, Mickey," said The Druid.

"What was 'The Big Lie of Ireland'?" asked Michael Doogan.

"It is an odd tale," said The Druid. "It appears the author of 'The Big Lie of Ireland' had been found guilty of a felony and was sentenced to hang. He was promised a pardon by an earl known as The Brown Earl if he composed a song in which there was not one word of truth. His composition was fantastic. In one place he describes a scene which he witnessed of a cricket sitting on the hearthstone with a pistol in his hand ready to annihilate the family cat. In another place he describes a scene wherein a young kitten feeds the breast-milk of a hen to the old cat. He might have done himself proud if he had not deviated from the path of lies to the path of flattery. He desired to flatter the Brown Earl so he said the tailor would make a suit with which the Brown Earl could not find fault. This, while literally true, had the double indignity of being an insult to the vanity of the Brown Earl who considered himself the best-dressed man in Ireland. The poet lost his head." — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Tomorrow: She wanted to see Jim and nothing could stop her except the young man in tweeds. "Nice Girl," by Maureen Daly.

His Composition Was Fantastic.

and Michael Burke, the master, is a match for any man in Ireland in Gaelic and English and the foreign languages. It is a grand chance a young gossamer like Patsy Dan's Michaelaheen has to make a name for himself in the world and maybe become the Lord Mayor of Dublin or a bishop or some other grand job like that."

"I'm afraid it is no bishop he'll make, Andy," said Michael Doogan. "If he takes after his grandfather Moojean More. There never was a bigger liar from here to the Giant's Causeway than that same Moojean."

"Are we to infer from your outburst, Michael," said The Druid with a wink to the company, "that a bishop is above and beyond a little innocent and routine prevarication?"

"There must be a bad drop in your blood, Thady," said Michael Doogan. "Every time some one mentions the name of a bishop you say something like that. It is no wonder old Father Michael, God rest his soul, called you a druid and a pagan."

"I'm afraid you, like many others, misinterpret my philosophy, Michael," said The Druid. "I do not insinuate that a bishop must necessarily be a liar. What I would convey is that in this day and age when verbal fabrication is often the very essence of success, that a successful bishop must be a successful diplomat, and a successful diplomat must, to say the least, be a tactful one. I would also remind you that the appellation of Druid with which the venerable Father Michael, peace to his ashes, endowed me was not the result of difference in religious doctrine, but the outcome of a squabble in local politics."

"Whatever lies poor Moojean More told," said Andy Joe, "were harmless ones and done for the entertainment of the company. Sometimes there is nothing better to pass a long winter's night than a good decent respectable lie if told by a decent liar and not to bring scandal to a neighbor."

"I agree with you, Andy," said The Druid. "The greatest fiction writers of the world might be called the greatest liars, if we were to judge them by the yard-stick of our illustrious friend, Michael Doogan. Instead of that the lies they tell have brought solace and comfort to the sick and the worried. To my mind these liars are of as great a value to the world as good doctors. "It was hard to beat him," said Andy Joe.

"Quite true, Andy," said The Druid. "High flights of fancy might be unsurpassable were it not for one slight error. This error proves that he was not the perfect liar, as it goes without saying that a perfect craftsman never errs."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

When Winston Churchill in his vigorous style spoke of purging Norway's soil of the Nazi invaders he introduced into the uncertainties of the European war a time element that appears significant.

Welcoming home from Narvik survivors of the British destroyer Hardy, the first lord of the admiralty termed them the vanguard of the Allied armies which "during this summer" would be fighting to push back the Germans.

Mr. Churchill could well have been preparing British public opinion for long and difficult days ahead. The campaign to control Scandinavia is likely to be slow and costly, and cautious as well after the present haste to land troops and establish bases before the Germans dig in.

Face Long Fight

Though the seizure of Norway was a matter of only days, to eject the Nazis promises to require months if not years. Indeed they may still be there when the war ends, should a decision be reached elsewhere than on the Allies' left flank.

The reason is at least twofold:

The British and French face grim military difficulties that will require time as well as force and iron will to conquer, and they must shun risks because of the effect of a major disaster upon such "non-belligerents" as Italy.

They obviously can afford no such failure as that at the Dardanelles in 1915.

From a tactical standpoint, the difficulties of the campaign in Norway appear little short of appalling to military men as long as the Nazis retain their formidable air power.

On land as well as in the air virtually every technical advantage lies with the German occupying forces — established bases, inside lines, defensive positions, control of railways and communications, shorter and protected routes for reinforcements and supplies, aerial superiority, and possibly troops better trained and equipped for the type of fighting.

Britain Controls Seas

Britain is still mistress of the open seas, but no navy afloat was designed for warfare in narrow waters against land batteries and swarms of warplanes and submarines operating from nearby bases.

Through the long summer days of the northern latitudes, British convoys of transports and supply ships must swing far to the west to keep out of the range of aerial attackers, before heading for the Norwegian coast. Operating from coastal air fields, German bombers can be protected by short-range pursuit craft, an advantage denied British bombing planes operating from across the North Sea.

In general, regardless of the hope for ultimate victory, the outlook in the north must be grim particularly to the British. From Lord Lothian, the British ambassador to the United States, as well as from Mr. Churchill and other leaders, come indications the situation is fully recognized and accepted. Said the ambassador in a recent address:

"We have never been under any illusions that the task we have set ourselves will not be a long and formidable one. x x x It may be, as in other wars we have fought, our only really victorious battle will be the last."

Engraving of maps began in the year 1460. Before that date they were in manuscript.

Tasmania was originally known as Van Diemen's Land.

MAYBE you've been buying automobiles for a long time.

Maybe you figure that the way to get the best "deal" is to play one dealer against another until you get the highest trade-in figure for your old car.

But do you figure out the actual money difference between the old-car allowance and the new-car delivered price?

Do you take steps to make sure something has not been slipped into the delivered price to take care of the extra allowance you get for your old car?

That is called "packing"—and your only real protection against it is to get a full and clear itemized statement of all details in the price.

You get these details from the "plainview" price chart and price tag we General Motors dealers use.

You see the price of the car itself—the charge for transportation, based on rail rates—our charge for any optional equipment or accessories you may elect to buy.

The whole deal is out in the open, as it should be, and you can see exactly what you pay for what you get.

How about dropping in and talking this over?

This is the standard price tag used by General Motors dealers to show what makes up the prices of new cars delivered to customers. "PRICE OF CAR" means the price we charge for the car itself, including reimbursement for Federal Tax and conditioning—"TRANSPORTATION CHARGE" means a charge for transportation from factory to you, based on rail rates—"OPTIONAL EQUIPMENT AND ACCESSORIES" means the charge for any extra equipment or accessories you elect to buy.

Luncheon Is Given for Miss Marquis, Bride-Elect, by Mrs. Hetzel

Honoring Miss Betty Ann Marquis, bride-elect, Mrs. Frederick A. Hetzel, of Braddock road, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the Golden Gate tea room, South Centre street. A miscellaneous shower followed.

Invited guests included Mrs. O. M. Marquis, Miss Ruth Marquis, Mrs. George A. Schwarzenbach, Mrs. James T. White, Miss Margaret Couehlan, Mrs. John McAlpine, Mrs. L. Leslie Helmer, Miss Elinor Boyd, Miss Ruth Lenore Rosenbaum, Miss Anna Whiting James, Mrs. John B. Mordock, Mrs. Robert M. King, Miss George Dixon, Miss Leora Egglierton and Mrs. W. Earl Coney.

Attend Convention

Several Cumberland women are attending the annual convention of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, which is being held today, tomorrow and Thursday at the Emerson hotel in Baltimore.

Included are Mrs. J. W. Aylmer, Thomas, Miss Elizabeth L. Lowndes, Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, Mrs. H. T. Robinson, Mrs. Jesse W. Holmes, Mrs. Nellie Wilson Foster and Mrs. F. H. Ankeney.

Hogg-Cassler

Miss Janet Irene Cassler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Cassler, of Holsopple, Pa., and James Franklin Hogg, of Johnstown, Pa., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hogg, of Summit, N. J., were married Saturday in this city. The Rev. Robert H. Parker performed the ceremony.

Following the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Hogg left for Philadelphia and New York and upon their return will reside in Johnstown, where Mr. Hogg is employed by the Bethlehem Steel Company.

Wagner-Hast

Miss Hermine Elizabeth Hast, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Crawford, of LaVale, and George Leroy Wagner, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner, of 512 Baltimore avenue, were married at 8 o'clock Saturday morning in St. Peter and Paul Catholic church with a nuptial mass celebrated by the Rev. Boniface, O. M. Cap. pastor.

The bride was attired in a powder blue gown and wore a corsage of pink roses. Miss Clara Killander, maid of honor, wore a dusty pink and a corsage of Tullamore roses. D. W. Griffith was best man.

Following the ceremony a breakfast was held at the Algonquin hotel, and was then followed by a reception at the home of the bride's mother. The couple then left on a honeymoon through Virginia. They will reside in LaVale.

Both were graduated from Allegheny high school. Mr. Wagner is employed in the office of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Birthday Is Observed

Little Miss Barbara Sue Hollis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Hollis, Park street, entertained with a party on her first birthday Saturday afternoon.

Among the little guests and their mothers were the baby's great-grandmother, Mrs. J. L. Poling, 101 Greene street; her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Alther, Park street and Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hollis, 113 Greene street.

Contest Is Launched

A membership contest between boys and girls was launched, with ten members participating, at a meeting of the Young People's Christian Endeavor Society of Zion Reformed church Sunday evening at the church. Thermometers registered the points of each team were for the dance.

CHAPTER FORTY

IT WAS 9:15 when I rolled over in bed and looked at the alarm clock the next morning. My usual hour for breakfast was 7 o'clock, but the events of the past few nights had robbed me of most of my rest and I had slept through the ringing of the alarm clock.

I knew that my jumping nerves had been set at rest, partially at least, by Louise Markham's faith in me. I could no longer deny it to myself—I was in love with her.

After a cold shower to rid my head of that groggy feeling that comes of late sleeping on a summer morning, I rang up the police station to find out what had happened.

They had found William Calla. It had simply been a matter of watching for him on the San Francisco docks from which two steamers were leaving that morning for foreign ports. An hour before I had awakened, two deputy sheriffs had left by automobile to bring Calla back. They were expected about 11 o'clock.

In surprise I hung up the receiver. I hadn't thought the law would work so fast. I had a bargain to make with Calla. He must testify just enough to free Jerry. He must not reveal that Alfred Markham was a drug addict! It would break Louise's heart.

I wasn't sure when I had first begun to suspect Alfred's awful secret. The evidence had piled up little by little, until I could no longer doubt it. His drug addiction was the reason for his strange behavior that night.

Calla, I was convinced, was the man who supplied the drugs, but I knew he had not killed Alfred Markham. That was the bargain I wanted to make with him. I would see that he was not convicted, if he would keep Alfred's secret from his sister.

I telephoned Harvey McGuire and learned that Jerry had not yet been formally charged with murder, but was being held in jail until his preliminary hearing in a justice court at 11:30. It seemed certain that the judge would hold him for trial.

"Can I see you before then?" I begged.

"Sure! Come right over," McGuire invited.

I ate a hasty breakfast and hurried to McGuire's office, on the seventh floor of the Mercantile building on K street. The bustle of elevator and hallways was in sharp contrast to the quiet of his rooms. He was leaning back in his swivel chair, smoking a cigar and gazing abstractedly at the ceiling. His eyes dropped to mine as I entered.

"All out of breath, Bill," he observed. "What's the rush?"

"What's the rush?" I echoed.

"How can you ask that when my best friend is going to be charged with murder this morning?"

"Forget it, Bill. He'll never be convicted. The evidence against him is all circumstantial."

I sat down on the edge of the desk. "But it's dangerous—it's dangerous for this case even to come to trial. Can you stop it—at the hearing?"

He leaned forward, knocked the ashes of his cigar and gave me a look of interest. "What's the trouble? Some kind of scandal in the family?"

The accuracy of his guess was startling. "Something like that," I admitted, feeling that it was best to be honest with him. "And it will be sure to come out if they try to drag the body." Suppose Alfred Markham was killed.

"How can you ask that when my best friend is going to be charged with murder?"

"But, good God, man! We can't let a murderer go just to suppress a bit of scandal."

"How do you know it was murder?"

He frowned. "That's a silly question. A man doesn't stab himself to death, then drag his own body twenty feet or so."

"How do we know the murderer dragged the body?" Suppose Alfred killed himself. Suppose someone thought he had just fainted, and dragged the body out into the light, then discovered he was stabbed to death, and in terror threw the knife into the river?"

McGuire shook his head. "It's no go, Bill. Too far fetched. Markham was murdered. Since when have you taken such a great interest in the Markham family that you are worrying about scandal besmirching their fair name?"

"Well, you see, his sister—" "Oh, Louise Markham?"

"Yes."

"I noticed she was attractive," observed Harvey. "A real good scout, too, or I'm no judge."

"You're a darn good judge," I told him. "And she thinks her brother Alfred was about the finest person in the world. So does George Markham. And I happen to know that Alfred came to his death because of a fatal weakness. To reveal that weakness—"

"So he went out there to meet a woman, did he?"

"No!"

"Well, what was it?"

"I can't say."

"If you refuse to talk, and have no new evidence to present at the preliminary hearing this morning, your friend Jerry will surely be held."

He hesitated. "I could give new testimony."

"What do you mean?"

"I know Jerry didn't kill Alfred because I was watching Jerry when he went out of the clubhouse

Visit CCC Camp

Over a hundred persons visited the Meadow Mountain CCC Camp yesterday where open house was being held in celebration of the seventh anniversary of the camp. The American Elm tree was planted in front of the picnic pavilion at New Germany and because of the inclement weather the remainder of the services were held in the recreation hall of the camp. For this reason, too, the baseball game was called off.

Speakers were John L. Dunkle, president of the Frostburg State Teachers College; William C. Walsh, attorney general; Robert Schkeils, project superintendent; and Lieut. Charles W. Beagle, commanding officer of the camp.

Music was furnished by the Meadow Mountain Drum and Bugle Corp. Supper was served to the guests, after which sound motion pictures pertaining to CCC work and flood control were shown.

Guests Return Home

Mrs. Earl Houston left tonight for her home at Wilkesbarre, Pa., after a brief visit with her brother-in-law and sister Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weise, and her aged father, M. K. Ryman, who is quite ill. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Turpin, Washington, D. C., were also here yesterday. Mr. Ryman's condition shows little improvement. His daughter, Mrs. Cecil Woodward, who had spent the past week here returned to her home at Magnolia, O. yesterday, but Mrs. Donald Gero, Louisville, O., who accompanied her here, will remain for a time.

Brief News Notes

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harold Miller will entertain members of the Helping Hand Class at their home here Wednesday evening.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Livingston were their son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Paul Livingston, and their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Taylor, Washington, D. C. Mrs. Taylor also visited her mother, Mrs. Marshall Beachy. The party returned home last night.

Joseph M. Pollock, Uniontown, Pa., forfeited collateral of $1145 when he failed to appear for a hearing before the Trial Magistrate's court here today. He was apprehended yesterday by State Trooper Carl G. Storm, who charged him with exceeding the speed limit.

Dr. and Mrs. Norman D. Davis, and son, Robert, returned home last night from Pidgeley, where they spent the weekend with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Faith.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Richter are the parents of a daughter born at their home on Negro Mountain last night. Mrs. Richter was formerly Miss Eleanor Younklin. This is their third child, all of whom are girls.

Miss Ethel Broadwater and Mrs. W. Harold Miller attended the Homemakers Club County Council meeting at Oakland Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Urban Stanton had as their dinner guests yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Parsons, Baltimore; Miss Pearl Hershberger,

Staying Fresh at the Party

By HELEN FOLLETT

HOW ARE your staying powers when the merry evening is in full blast? Do you feel yawn and look wilted? That won't do. No doubt you tore around all day, got all "wore" out, in which case it serves you right.

Our foremothers took better care of themselves than we do, probably because they had more leisure. The afternoon nap was a custom. If you could sneak 30 minutes of relaxation, you'd feel and look fresher at the party.

If time is chasing you furiously, then you'll have to rely on the warm, relaxing bath. Wash your pretty face first, dry it well, spread on a light cream. That, with the warm, moist air of the bathroom, will give your complexion a renovating. Lie in the tub with closed eyes and muscles limp. Use a heavy brush to get the blood streams chasing around, then have a quick, cold shower and a rubdown with a bath tonic.

Wring a heavy washcloth out of cold water, hold it over your eyes, lie down for 20 minutes. The cold compress will sparkle up your soul windows. Sit before your dressing table, tap cream into your complexion, use an astringent and swish around an ice cube. You'll still be as fresh as crisp lettuce when the party breaks up.

There are times when a soap shampoo is out of the question; during an illness, for instance, when it is impossible to get out of one's bed. The dry shampoo comes in handy then.

Mix together two tablespoonfuls of powdered orris root and two tablespoonfuls of yellow corn meal, running them through the flour sifter.

LANA TURNER... keeps peppy by following the rigid health rules.

Place in a large tin salt shaker. Fluff the mixture over the scalp, lifting the hair here and there to distribute it.

Remove the powder with a brush of heavy bristles. Give a last brushing with the bristles covered with cotton. This treatment removes dust and oil.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE IDEAL DIVISION

WHEN YOU have four trumps in one hand opposite four in the other, you have the most pliable distribution of eight cards of the suit. It empowers you to play the hand in a wider variety of ways than with any other division of the suit. For cross-ruffing it is by far the best arrangement, and on hands not adapted to that form of play it has another special value. Either your own holding or the dummy may be treated as the master, using the trumps of the opposite hand for helping set up a side suit by ruffing out the opponents' winners.

North's sudden leap to slam, as soon as he heard the heart bid, was justified in this case by the fact that the pair was making No Trump opening bids only on extremely powerful hands. Radically different bidding would be done by most good players.

duplicate enthusiast, gave a neat example of what is called "reverse play," using the dummy as the master, after West led the club 9. Deciding to set up the diamonds, she won East's club K with the A, led her two trump honors to disclose the bad trump distribution, cashed the spade A, discarded a spade on the club Q, took the A and K of diamonds, then led a third diamond and ruffed. If West had over-ruffed, he could have made no more tricks, so he discarded a spade. The heart A was cashed, then diamonds led for West to ruff. The heart 5 ruffed the return and diamonds finished the hand.

Another player, trying to clear the South hand, using North's trumps for ruffing, failed in the effort to make 6-Heart. Go through the play yourself on this basis, and you will note the difficulties entailed.

VISIT US TOMORROW TO SEE
THE NEW STORE and NEW VALUES!

Hafer's 33-year-old policy of growth with Frostburg and Western Maryland is appropriately reflected in this new and beautiful store. Faith in the future of this fine community justifies the huge expenditure made in re-building our store after the disastrous fire of last August.

It is a beautiful store—if we do say so ourselves. But our deepest satisfaction lies in the fact that it is satisfying not only to the eye, but in the innumerable conveniences it provides our patrons. Tomorrow you will get a thrill when you visit each new floor . . . each new department . . . each new model room. The four big floors are expertly arranged to delight even the most exacting shopper. New fluorescent lighting present the settings in their natural color . . . An entirely new system for heating . . . Air-conditioned to make summer shopping a treat instead of a task. There are many other surprises that we could write about . . . But you'll enjoy it even more when you come in tomorrow—and understand why HAFER'S is the most beautiful furniture store in Western Maryland . . . If not in the whole state.

HAFER'S BRING YOU AMERICA'S BEST:

An entirely new and distinctive funeral home . . . Dedicated to the responsibility of a sympathetic service at modest cost . . .

The new Hafer Funeral home will be open for inspection tomorrow and all this week, through Sunday from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. Visitors will be personally conducted through the entire establishment.

You will be pleased to note the many conveniences for patrons and friends, not the least of which are the spacious church-like chapel and its adjoining private family room, repose room and immaculate new preparation room embodying every modern facility. The entire home is air-conditioned. In addition a modern Hammond Electric organ has been installed and will be played all day tomorrow.

But see for yourself what this new funeral home will mean to this community. See at first hand the broad price range of reasonable charges prevailing here.

DESPITE THE EXCELLENCE OF FACILITIES, HAFER CHARGES ARE, IN MANY INSTANCES, LOWER THAN WOULD OFTEN BE PAID FOR SERVICE WITH THE SAME QUALITY OF MERCHANDISE.

Celanese and Other Stocks Hit New Tops for the Year or Longer

Specialties Feature Market and Leaders Close Irregular

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, April 22 (AP)—Specialties again turned upward in today's stock market while most leaders encountered just enough selling to hold them within a narrow irregular range.

The list got off to a fairly good start, moped for a while, then posted the best prices of the day running to around a point or so after noon. Dealings thereafter slackened and extreme gains were cut or cancelled at the close.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was able to retain a net advance of 1 of a point at 50. Transfers totaled 768,990 shares against 1,154,990 last Friday.

Saturday's brisk rally did much to drop speculative sentiment, although confounding dispatches from the European war left Wall Street somewhat timid regarding the expansion of commitments either way. It was noted, at the same time, that issues standing to profit from war influences received considerable attention.

New 1940 peaks were reached by International Paper, Preferred, Swift, Armour, American Bosch, Celanese and Bush Terminal.

Curl gainers of as much as 2 or so included Todd Shipyards, Pittsburgh Paving, Hammill Paper, Gulf Oil and Aluminum of America. The turnover here approximately 230,000 shares compared with 243,000 in the previous full session.

"Hunchback" Hailed As Film Masterpiece

Acclaimed as the most remarkable achievement in screen production since the advent of sound, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," starring Charles Laughton, comes to the screen as a thrill-laden, spectacular filmization of Victor Hugo's noted classic. The picture is now at the Garden.

Taking three months to produce and employing 3,500 atmosphere players, "The Hunchback" was filmed against reproductions of the Cathedral of Notre Dame, Palais de Justice and other representative settings of medieval Paris.

Laughton, said to give the crown performance of his career, heads Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Thomas Mitchell, Edmond O'Brien, Maureen O'Hara, Walter Hampden and Katharine Alexander in this RKO Radio Picture directed by William Dieterle.

When Edmund Lowe was cast for a featured role in "Our Neighbors—the Carters," new drama of family life now at the Garden theater, he learned with more or less mingled emotions that he would have to learn to play "Swanee River" on the mouth organ for the role.

Also featured in the picture are Fay Bainter, Frank Craven and Genevieve Tobin.

of geography. For, in one of her song and dance numbers, "Dancing for Nickels and Dimes," Miss Lamour proves that a tattered street gambler's costume can reach heights of allure such as a sarong never even dreamed of.

In "Johnny Apollo" Dorothy has a powerful dramatic role. For "Lucky" Dubarry is the gun moll of the hard-boiled gangster, Mickey Dwyer (Lloyd Nolan), who falls hard for Johnny Apollo (Tyronne Power)—a banker's college man son who turns mobster when the father he idolizes is sent to prison and his wealthy friends turn against him.

In "Johnny Apollo" Miss Lamour wears a number of other breath-taking costumes notably a strapless black tulle evening gown.

"Little Jack Little" and his orchestra will be on the stage Thursday at the Strand. The genial orchestra leader announces that he will present for the first time some of his newer unpublished tunes as well as a review of his hits.

Senator Guffey Is Facing Fight for Renomination In Pennsylvania Primary

Democratic Party Backs Walter Jones, Pittsburgh Oil Man; Jay Cooke Out in Front among Republicans

Jay Cooke, leading Republican aspirant for Pennsylvania's senate seat now held by Joseph Guffey.

Senator Guffey, who has a fight on his hands for renomination in the Democratic primary.

By ALLEN J. FRENCH
Central Press Correspondent

Pittsburgh, April 22.—A resumption of the Democratic "Brawl of 1938" was threatened in Pennsylvania this spring with U. S. Senator Joseph P. Guffey seeking renomination despite the frank disapproval of his entire party.

It is no closely guarded secret that Guffey stands virtually by himself despite the fact that he is a tried-in-the-wool New Dealer and has always voted the "right way" when New Deal legislation was before the senate.

Not was it very much of a secret that Walter A. Jones, Pittsburgh oil man and chairman of the Pennsylvania Turnpike commission, was the Democratic choice as a successor to the present incumbent.

Saving Face
The state Democratic committee, however, chose to "save face" by declaring an open primary. In this way, the committee avoided the problem of endorsing an unpopular candidate without actually discrediting Guffey and thus seeming to turn against one of President Roosevelt's prime supporters.

The Jones candidacy has put the president himself in a peculiar light. He could not very well come out and endorse either one, for Guffey has rubber-stamped each and every one of the president's measures while Jones was a national committeeman and close friend.

Since both men agree that the president should seek a third term, there will probably be no argument on this point. In fact, state Democratic Chairman David L. Lawrence entered the president's name for ballot in the preferential primaries on April 23.

Nominees for the United States senate, congress, the legislature and two fiscal officers will be elected in the primaries.

Wide-cracking, quick-witted William McNair, former Pittsburgh mayor, has also filed for the senate seat on the Democratic ballot.

Cooke Leads G. O. P.

Among the Republicans Jay Cooke, Philadelphia chairman, has the backing of the "regular organization," which, in turn, is strongly backed by Joseph Pew, wealthy oil magnate. Other Republicans seeking the post, but without party support, are Albert H. Ladner, also of Philadelphia, who has declared himself opposed to "party dictatorship," and John A. Derezio, Altoona publisher, who has declared himself in favor of the Townsend plan.

In announcing his candidacy for the nomination, Jones declared for party unity, stating:

"My candidacy is in the interest of party harmony and Democratic success in the November election. It is my desire to give the Democratic voters of Pennsylvania who wish to end factional feuds a rallying point."

"I am a candidate because I do not want Pennsylvania to lose her Democratic representation in the senate."

Jones also declared himself for a "good, clean fight" for the nomination—and placed himself on record as opposed to all forms of mudslinging.

Senator Guffey's comment on the action of the committee was:

"I am pleased with the result and in my campaign for re-election I shall stand on my 100 percent record of support for President Roosevelt and the New Deal."

The open primary not only had the approval of former Governor George H. Earle, but was believed to have been urged from Washington.

First in 58 Years
Guffey is the first Democratic senator from Pennsylvania in 58 years, and as such has had a prime hand in handing out federal patronage. Elected to the senate in 1934, Guffey desired the Democratic gubernatorial candidacy in 1938, but found to his chagrin that other state leaders were not of the same mind.

The state committee flatly rejected Guffey and chose Charles Alvin Jones of Pittsburgh to place in the field. Thus frustrated, Guffey bolted the state committee's choice and with the support of the United Mine Workers and other C. I. O. unions very nearly succeeded in placing Thomas Kennedy, a union official, in the candidacy he sought for himself.

His tactics during that fight were of the rough and tumble style, and many were the Democrats who found themselves unable to "forget and forgive" when the smoke of battle cleared.

But whatever the outcome of the spring primaries in the Democratic party, it seems quite likely the victor will face Jay Cooke, of Philadelphia, hand-picked by Republican organization leaders to run for the senatorial post.

But Senator Guffey was brought up in the "old school" of politics and to him a fight is a fight and the only object is to win.

This was one of the prime reasons for the committee's desire to steer away from the veteran politician. It was declared by many an authority that had it not been for the senator's friendship with State Leader Lawrence, he might very well have ended his campaign before he started it—simply by having the committee come out as directly opposed to his renomination.

As it was, Guffey himself appeared before the Democratic leadership to lead his cause. The fact that an open primary was declared was considered a "victory" for the senator.

Many Students Face the Danger Line in Grades

Some Failures in High School and College Are Due to Study Habits

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Now that the school year is in the home stretch, there are many elementary and high school pupils, as well as college students, who are facing the prospect of not getting passing grades. Some of these near the danger line might "make it" if they exerted more effort or had special help and guidance. Others would work harder if they only could gain heart and feel some hope.

Some will fail because of indolence or careless study habits, and most of these will be hounded and abused by their parents, and reminded of the "disgrace" which their failure will bring upon the family.

It may be too late now to correct these habits sufficiently to effect a passing grade. Anyway, lecturing, tongue-lashing or tugging at their hearstrings hardly will help. Usually such procedure by parents contributes toward the child's failure and builds a wall between the child and them.

More Self-Control
If you, my fellow parent, have a child in danger of failing at school or college, you will do most to assure his passing by working on yourself so as to acquire more self-control. If you can be objective and skillful enough to prepare a workable program that your son or daughter will choose to accept, you will have won a great victory. If you can discipline yourself so as to create a calm and hopeful atmosphere at home for the school child who seems to be facing failure, and can win his co-operation in a plan of study so effective as to put him over the line, your triumph will be glorious. To this end you might get help by conferring with the school or providing a tutor for him.

You might help your child beyond the fourth grade by reading to him from his textbook assignments which are too hard for him, helping him get the content and turn it into a few words of his own. Whether he passes or not, this will be good investment for his future learning.

You might discover, however, upon carefully looking into the matter, that your child's arrears are too great to be made up in the time left. In this event, discipline yourself to bring no more pressure on the child but to help him plod on as hopefully and conscientiously as possible.

School yourself to be able to help him meet the final verdict of his failure calmly and without being crushed. Put your hope in the future, in his greater success next year. Instead of heaping more worry, sorrow and ignominy on him, help create a family attitude toward him which will reassure him of the family's faith in him and love for him; which, moreover, will help him keep faith in himself and still feel worthwhile.

Between now and next fall try to arrive at a way that will help this child pursue his studies more successfully. Always we must look ahead. Always it's the future we must keep in mind.

A list of books on how to study effectively and a page of "Tips for students" may be had by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems
Q Why don't parents and teachers put on more parties for children from six to 14?

A Because so many children of this age, especially from average and well-to-do homes, are so unrestrained that they will damage the home if not the nerves of the hostess. Think of the children denied opportunities for wholesome fun and social education because their parents failed to train them in the alphabet of self-control.

Q I have no children but some friends come to my home with a little child and let him break or destroy things there. What should I do?

A Do the best you can. Your friends who permit such things are about the meanest mothers I can imagine. Sometimes I think they ought to be in jail. At least they should reimburse you for the damage done. But who will ever repair the moral damage they inflict upon their child by not restraining him?

Food Poisoning Is Often Caused by Salmonella Germ

"Typhoid Poisoning" Is Now Said to Be an Incorrect Term

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
What is salmonella food poisoning?

Health authorities at the present time are of the opinion that most food poisoning is due to salmonella infection. It used to be called "typhoid poisoning," but this is an inaccurate term.

Salmonella is a germ which is particularly likely to infect food.

Probably a great deal of what has been called intestinal influenza this winter is due to salmonella poisoning.

Salmonella causes acute irritation of the stomach and intestinal tract, with nausea, vomiting, prostration and a slight temperature. According to M. J. Rosenau, the famous authority on hygiene in the United States, "Most instances of food poisoning are from food that is fingered and fussed over, inadequately processed or imperfectly preserved. There is little danger in fresh, clean food, whereas food that is prepared hours before it is eaten gives opportunity for the growth of bacteria. The chief offenders in food infection are meat, milk and mixtures containing these products."

In treatment, salmonella infection is self-limited and usually disappears after two or three days of liquid diet and the use of mild sedatives.

Occupational Hazards
Are there any occupational hazards among photographers?

Nowadays photography is a highly individualistic art, and a great many different chemicals are used which have different possibilities of ill effects. No two large establishments use precisely the same chemicals. There is, therefore, no single occupational disease due to any single chemical or procedure which can be put down as a hazard for photographers.

Such things as the sulfates, for instance, diamphenol sulfate, acids, sodium thiosulfate, borax and potassium bromide may cause eruptions on the skin and dermatitis, either from contact or from inhalation of these substances.

A great many chemicals used in photography also cause anemia and destruction of the red cells of the blood.

I am asked particularly about dizziness and loss of hearing and loss of smell. This combination of symptoms is not associated with any particular chemical used in photography, but benzine is used in mounting prints and in different kinds of cement, so photographers are exposed to evaporated benzine. In the case of suspicion, it would be well to investigate the fatigability of the person who is ill; also makes a careful blood count and find out what kind of mounting cement is used.

Questions and Answers
G. E. P.: "Will you please publish the symptoms and treatment of trigeminal neuralgia?"

Answer — Paroxysmal, lightning-like pains in the region of the forehead, upper jaw, lower jaw or all three places. They are extremely severe and debilitating. They come on in attacks, with intervals of hours, days or weeks of relief. Little things like exposure to drafts, very hot or very cold food in the mouth, or sudden noise, may set off an attack of pain. The treatment is to numb in some way the trigeminal nerve. In the most severe forms the only relief is obtained by surgical removal of the ganglion of the trigeminal nerve.

Turkey Growers To Discuss Problems

Jarrettsville, Md., April 22. (AP)—Maryland and Pennsylvania turkey growers will meet here Wednesday, May 1 for discussion of turkey problems.

Speakers in the morning session will include J. P. Corcoran, Maryland Turkey Growers' Association president, describing a marketing program; L. E. Downey of the Maryland state department of markets, and H. H. Kauffman of Pennsylvania State College, outlining methods to lower turkey production costs.

S. J. Maraden in charge of turkey investigations at the U. S. research center in Beltsville, will address a luncheon meeting on breeding and feeding, and Wade H. Rice, poultry specialist of the University of Maryland Extension Service, will speak on "keeping poultry mortality at a minimum."

The program will end with a panel discussion on "home matching or purchasing of day-old poultry."

BY ITS RESULTS
WORLD'S TONIC
WINS FRIENDS

Hagerstown Lady Finds
New and Different Relief
In Long Search
For Proper Medicine

So amazing are many of the expressions of relief that users of World's Tonic are daily turning in that we fear they would challenge belief if we did not possess the actual and verified facts. Yet it is not strange that this famous medicine should effect triumph in so many ailments at the same time, for World's Tonic is really many medicinals in one. An army has generals, captains, lieutenants and privates. In like manner with World's Tonic, each ingredient is in charge of a special detail with a definite duty to perform. All balance to co-operate with the whole, and with such precision often comes triumphant gaining of the objective, and that objective is—to prevent disease and sickness at its base—the intestinal tract.

The experience of others saves wear and tear on your purse and person. That's the opportunity that these World's Tonic stories offer you. A chance to reap a profit from the experience of others with practically no investment but the will to try. So instead of promises let Mrs. Nora Hamlett 709 Marshall St., Hagerstown, Md., tell of results.

"I like results, not promises, and for that reason World's Tonic won me for a friend and I'm going to praise this medicine to every sufferer with similar ailments as long as I can talk. I'd been a constipation victim for years and about six months ago this left me an easy prey to distressing attacks. My kidneys were weakened and I became generally weak and lacking in energy and ambition. Foods wouldn't digest and caused gas and bloating. Severe pains across my back, and disturbed sleep because of irregular bladder action had my nerves all on edge. Although I had tried many medicines before without getting the relief I sought, my condition was becoming so bad that something had to be done at once. I was attracted by the grateful things people were saying about World's Tonic and, especially by their evident sincerity. After the first few bottles had so completely helped my constipation, I realized that the road to health was in sight—that I could feel returning strength and energy. My stomach and kidneys regulated and my nerves grew soothed and calm. Eating and sleeping properly soon threw off all the effects of my attacks and I have such a glorious feeling of youth and health that I hardly know myself. It's hard to realize that so many different benefits could grow from just one medicine and no wonder so many people praise it."

The makers of this famous medicine reach into various parts of the old countries for much of its roots and herbs compound, seeking for the strength and health of your foreign born ancestors.

Mrs. Roosevelt's Voice Teacher
Likes To Drink Imaginary Water

1. "Speech muscles are here," Mrs. von Hesse says, showing where to breathe from . . .

2. "Not here. Why talk from here, when you laugh and cry from your diaphragm?"

3. "And these are your smiling muscles — which also help in plain speaking," Mrs. von Hesse demonstrates.

New York—The woman who helped make Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt the public speaker she is today has an unusual theory about why YOU often stumble for the right word.

The likely reason is, says Mrs. Elizabeth von Hesse, that "you walk like a cowpuncher, but talk like a fisher-wife."

To know why she said that, you will have to know more about Mrs. von Hesse, and she's rather hard to find.

If you discover her in New York, she'll be busy in her fashionable upper East Side studio surrounded by roses from the White House. She's a handsome, gray-haired woman who looks like the very nice mother of a grown-up daughter . . . as she is.

She'll have no hesitation telling you how to walk and talk: Put an imaginary rubber belt around your waist, and, with every breath, stretch the belt at the sides. That induces "wide" breathing, the cure for mumbling. (She thinks America is a nation of mumblers.) Besides telling you how to breathe she will insist on posture exercises as an aid to talking.

To speak freely, she explains, you must harmonize your speech with your actions. Even Mrs. Roosevelt started her speech lessons with exercises. Then, first thing you know, Mrs. von Hesse will dish out psychology, psychiatry and religion, too, for her speech system is based on her understanding of all of these.

You will learn all sorts of tricks about throat release, tone placement, plain speaking and melody. You'll find yourself drinking an imaginary glass of water and saying "Ah" as the make-believe water goes down; and, with a breath between each vowel sound, you'll swallow more water and say more vowels. Then, you'll repeat "Hang on to the feel vibration back of your eyes and forehead. That means you're using your head resonator to reverberate your voice. Since listening to your own voice is an easy way to learn to speak plainly, you'll be taking time to speak so the consonants come out distinctly and the vowels get full sound."

Perhaps you'll be chewing gum (in the privacy of your room, please, says Mrs. von Hesse), or massaging your upper lip and the corners of your mouth to relax your smiling muscles. And, certainly you'll be aware of the fact that melody is a part of timing, tempo and voice levels. Mrs. von

Four Speech Flaws Of Business Girls
Four chief faults hamper the American business girl, says Mrs. von Hesse. She lists them as these:

1. Slang.
2. An unfriendly tone.
3. Dullness.
4. Sounding like a saleswoman.

The von Hesse remedy is to make war on slang, to put a smile into your voice and then overcome the other defects by studying your voice and the voices of other people. Remember, she adds, that Americans are inattentive listeners, so concentrate on listening.

Hesse demonstrates how to put 12 notes of the music scale into one line of poetry. (And, in her natural speaking voice!) She advises you to strive for eight.

But, tricks and technique aside, she believes speech must ring true. "You condition tomorrow by what you think today—that's common sense," she insists, and her dark eyes are very serious.

Guessing Contest Brings Girl $80,000

Fairbanks, Alaska, April 22. (AP)—Blonde Clara Hansen rejoiced today in a guess worth $80,000.

The young Anchorage stenographer came within a minute of placing the time of the Tanana river ice would begin moving, trip an elaborate timing device and decide the winner of the famous Nevada break-up guessing contest.

The ice broke with a crack at 3:27 p. m. Saturday, but observers at Nenana were so excited they failed to notify the outside world for several hours.

Miss Hansen, daughter of a prosperous fisherman, is an employee of the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

The ground cover plants such as English ivy, myrtle, pachysandra, and the evergreen euonymus, should be cut back to force new growth if you find they have been damaged by the winter.

Planting of all trees and shrubs should be pushed to completion now, before too much growth starts, unless plants are to be moved with a ball of earth.

Suit of Parrill Against City of Keyser Begins

Going for $145 as Result of Injuries Sustained in a Fall

Keyser, W. Va., April 22.—The suit of John L. Parrill against the city of Keyser was heard in circuit court here today, but had not gone to the jury late this evening.

Parrill contended, through his attorney, R. A. Welch, that he stumbled into a hole in the pavement outside the Court Square cafe on Armstrong street, and fell through a pane of glass in a window of the establishment, injuring an arm, on the 20 last year.

The plaintiff is suing for $145 for medical fees, repair costs for the broken window and compensation for loss of six weeks from work.

Mayor Is Witness

Mayor John C. Freeland, a defense witness, testified that prior to the accident he had called attention to the owners of the building to the defect in the sidewalk.

Juries were taken to view the scene of the accident, opposite the Court house, which has been repaired. City Attorney Ernest A. represented the defense.

Earlier today Eugene Evans was found guilty of assault and battery on T. P. Liller. No sentence was passed as Evans' counsel, Attorney G. Shores and Joseph Hodgson asked a motion to set aside the verdict.

Guilty Pleas Entered

Samuel Tasker, Blaine and George Smith, Cumberland, entered pleas of guilty before Judge Robert McV. on charges of drunken driving. They were assessed fines of $10 and costs, and their operators' licenses were revoked.

A charge against Tasker of transgressing in an automobile a quantity of liquor greater than the gallon allowed by law was nolle prossed.

District Moose Convention Closes

One hundred and fifty delegates from eleven cities in the Northern district of West Virginia attended the annual district meeting of the Moose Order of Moose here yesterday afternoon and night.

Principal speakers were Dr. J. J. W. Terra Alta, state vice president, W. H. Callaghan, Fairmont, president of the Fairmont degree team, and Delbert Jenkins, Fairmont, district secretary. The invocation was given by Father P. J. Morahan, pastor, A. McCremmon, Clarkburg, district president, was in charge of the meeting.

A class of thirty-five was initiated in the Fairmont degree team, which won the state degree championship for the last three consecutive years.

David L. Lambardo, secretary of the Legion of the Moose, explained the purposes of that degree and the applicants for it will journey to Webster Springs next Sunday for initiation.

The initiation of a class of thirty-five members was conducted by the Moran and his state championship team from Fairmont Lodge No. 1.

The new archway in Keyser's main room was dedicated as the Arch in honor of Faye's devoted service to Keyser.

The next district meeting will be held at Weston June 9.

Fred Groh, Mannington tenor and writer, sang two of his own compositions.

The meeting was opened in the hall of Keyser lodge 662 at 2:30 yesterday afternoon and concluded at 10 o'clock last night.

Delegates were present from Morgantown, Terra Alta, Morgantown, Parkersburg, Wheeling, Moorehead, Parkersburg, Buckhannon, and other Springs and Weston.

Moose Plan Drive

Joe Casey, steward of Keyser lodge 662, Loyal Order of Moose, today that a celebration and membership drive would be held in July in honor of Miss Gertrude Fraley, formerly of Keyser, who is one of the students in this year's graduating class at the Fairmont school, Moorehead, Ill.

Miss Fraley's picture appeared in the last issue of the Moose magazine.

UDC To Meet

A meeting of the General Association of the West Virginia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will be held here today, it was announced today.

Following the morning meeting a luncheon will be served at the Glen hotel, which will open May 1. Following the luncheon, a program sponsored by Keyser's McNeill hotel will be presented, with Mrs. R. E. McDonald, Berryville, as principal speaker. Judge McDonald will speak on Mrs. Robert E. Lee. She is the author of a biography of General Lee's wife.

Mr. S. D. Brady, Morgantown, president of the UDC has been invited to preside.

Accident Seniors To Give Annual Play May 10-11

"Almost Eighteen" Will Be Presented in School Auditorium

Accident, April 22.—The senior class will present its annual play "Almost Eighteen," May 10 and 11 in the Accident school.

The principal characters are: Anna Harmon, Wilma Pratt, Alice Bowser, Mary House, Betty Clotfely, Leanna Bushman, Jean Shumaker, Bill Fickender, Robert Miller, Carl Dauphin, Earl Georg and Willis Silber.

Garrett county is the only county specifically mentioned and Dr. DuPuy points out interesting statistics here are much better than in a number of other counties of the state.

The article "Medicine in Rural Maryland," held closely to the field of obstetrics and was based upon quotations of Dr. John McP. Bergland, one of Baltimore's leading obstetricians, and Dr. C. H. Peckham, obstetrical consultant for the State Bureau of Child Hygiene.

Dr. Bergland feels the problems in medical and nursing care, particularly in the field of obstetrics will have to be met by methods similar to those used by the Frontier Nursing Service in the mountains of Kentucky. Nurses there must travel on horseback and carry their supplies in saddlebags; travel any hour of the night over trails; ford streams and build fires, etc. The Baltimore doctors feel such "service" would prove a solution to a "serious situation in the extreme western section of the state." That means us.

Conditions in Garrett

Dr. Peckham's contribution follows:

"Out in Garrett county, according to Dr. C. H. Peckham, obstetrical consultant for the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, children not infrequently are born during the winter in mountain cabins so far from the nearest settlement that word of the event does not reach the outside world until the following spring. Roads leading to these cabins are so bad that neither physicians nor nurses could reach the prospective mother by automobile in severe weather, even if they could be summoned.

"Garrett county has five public health nurses pitted against a population of 20,000 people, of whom only a handful are Negroes. Last year 512 babies were born in this section. Few of the mothers had pre-natal care, though when the public health nurses learn that a baby is expected they encourage a mother to consult the nearest physician.

There are no trained midwives in Garrett to go to the air of women in childbirth, so those who are unable to secure a physician are forced to depend on the services of a neighbor whose ideas on the subject of cleanliness may be extremely vague and who is incapable of dealing with an emergency or to negotiate the ordeal alone."

Now for the Record

A scanning of the 1939 state health records showed that of 512 births in Garrett county 415, or eighty-one per cent were delivered by physicians, seventy-nine by midwives and eighteen by others, most of these by election and not by necessity, according to Dr. DuPuy.

Physicians delivered only seventy-eight per cent of the total in Calvert, seventy-nine per cent in Caroline, while in Wicomico county only seventy-seven six tenths per cent of the whites and forty-four nine-tenths per cent of the colored, in Annapolis only twenty-nine per cent of the colored babies are delivered by physicians. The average for the state is ninety-six per cent for the whites and seventy-four per cent for the colored. It would be safe to say that conditions in the Baltimore slums are worse than anywhere in this county.

Physician Takes Exception to Article In Newspaper about Garrett County

Dr. H. R. DuPuy Says Conditions Are Not As Bad As Pictured

Oakland, April 22.—Medicine in rural Maryland, although not reaching the peaks of perfection, is not nearly as bad as is pictured in an article in the Baltimore Sunday Star of April 14, according to Dr. H. R. DuPuy, Garrett county health officer.

Church Band Is Being Organized At Romney Church

Young People of Methodist Congregation Hold First Rehearsal

Romney, W. Va., April 22.—A church band is being organized by the young people of the local Methodist church. The Rev. Raymond Musser, Moorefield, is in charge of the training of the band.

Those taking part in the first rehearsal were Jimmie Law, Jo Ann Law, Betty Mae Heatwood, Jackie Heatwood, Billy Parker, Charles Brandt, Billy Michael, Roy Smith, Carolyn Gunn, Elmer Sanders, Alene Carker and June Powell.

Tests were given to West Virginia club members in the schools of the county Friday. Pupils passing the tests with an average grade of not less than seventy percent will be awarded a badge. All pupils making ninety percent or more will be eligible for the Golden Horseshoe test. The winner of the Golden Horseshoe test will be given a free trip to the state capitol at Charleston to receive the accolade of Knights and Ladies of the Golden Horseshoe from State Superintendent of Schools W. W. Trent.

Football Schedule

The 1940 football schedule for the Romney high school has been announced by Coach Robert Kyle as follows:

Sept. 27, Capon Bridge, at home; Oct. 4, Charles Town, at home; Oct. 11, Franklin, away; Oct. 18, Moorefield, at home; Oct. 25, Petersburg, away; Nov. 1, Keyser, at home; Nov. 8, Ridgeley, away; Nov. 15, Berkeley Springs, at home.

The only new team appearing on the schedule is Charles Town high school.

Homemakers Meet

The Romney Future Homemakers club was hostess to the regional group meeting at the high school last Saturday. Members of clubs from Petersburg and Hedgesville were present to make plans for attending the state conference which will convene at Clarksburg June 1.

Brief Mention

The community center building under construction adjacent to the Romney graded school is nearing completion. During the summer the building will be used for juvenile recreation. On the reopening of school a kitchen will be established to prepare hot lunches. The building is being erected by the board of education and the Works Progress Administration.

Dr. W. H. Ribbeldaffer, public health doctor was the speaker at a public meeting held at Levels Friday night in the interest of cancer control. Cancer slides were shown and literature given to those attending.

D. Grove Moier, Martinsburg, candidate for the state senate of West Virginia was in Romney several days last week in the interests of his campaign.

Somerset County Sportsmen Will Meet on May 2

Charles A. French, Commissioner of Fisheries To Deliver Address

Meyersdale, Pa., April 22.—Arrangements have been completed for the first county-wide banquet of the sportsmen's organizations of Somerset county, which will be held in Amity Hall Thursday evening, May 2.

Among the guest speakers booked for the occasion are Charles A. French, commissioner of fisheries, and Ross L. Lefler, who will represent the Pennsylvania game commission. There will also be several other outstanding speakers.

There will also be an important meeting of the Somerset County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the community center room.

Firemen To Meet

The annual banquet of the local volunteer fire department will be held Wednesday evening between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock in the parish hall of SS. Philip and James church.

At last year's banquet more than 500 meals were served and preparations have been made to serve an equal number, or more, this year. A considerable portion of the food for this supper is supplied by the farmers of the Meyersdale region the rural district served by the local firemen. The proceeds are used to equip and maintain an alert and active fire fighting organization, such as the local company has upon numerous occasions proven itself to be.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Odd Fellows Recreation Center for Western Pennsylvania was held at Berlin Saturday, to complete arrangements for the selection of one of four proposed sites for the founding of the recreation camp.

No announcement was made of the result of the voting, but at a meeting of the group held several weeks ago in McKeesport a preference of three to one was shown in favor of purchasing the Deer Valley site owned by H. G. Peck and located in Elk Lick township, about ten miles south of Meyersdale near Mount Davis, the highest point of altitude in Pennsylvania.

County agriculture agents and visitors of the assistance department will work together in supervising the program and giving information as to planting and cultivation. If clients do not cooperate by putting out a garden they will receive no further relief.

Over 200 people attended the special service and electric organ demonstration held at Grace Lutheran church yesterday morning, which was sponsored by the Creighton Music Company, Clarksburg. A brief recital was given by Prof. Paul Wonnberger, famous pianist and organist. The Rev. George W. Strobel, the local pastor delivered an appropriate sermon.

Hardy County Farmers To Meet in Moorefield Today

Advantages of Cooperation To Be Discussed

Two Cooperative Groups Are Sponsoring Meeting at Court House

Moorefield, W. Va., April 22.—Advantages of Cooperation is the subject which Joseph T. Frye, Wardensville, will discuss at a public farmers' meeting to be held at the court house in Moorefield, Tuesday evening.

The meeting is sponsored jointly by the Hardy Farmers Co-operative and Southern States Cooperative and will give the farmers an opportunity to learn more of the program to be conducted by Hardy county farmer through their co-operative organization.

To Show Picture

L. E. Raper, Richmond, Va., a representative of Southern States Cooperative will outline some of the cooperative services.

"Southern States News Reel" in technical will be shown by L. E. Raper, Winchester. This movie reveals some of the steps taken in manufacturing, processing and handling Southern States supplies available to farmers throughout the cooperative program.

Each adult who attends will give credit for his attendance to one of the schools at which a farmers' co-operative committee meeting has been held. To the school with the largest attendance in proportion to its pupil enrollment, Southern States Cooperative will award a library improvement prize of $15, and to the school with the second highest percentage of attendance the organization will present $10.

Welton to Preside

H. C. Welton, president of the Hardy Farmers Cooperative will preside.

During the social period following the meeting there will be contests with prizes and refreshments. The Moorefield chapter, Future Farmers of America is making plans for a program of string music.

Chairman of committees in charge of arrangements include Mrs. John D. Taylor, Mrs. Martin Huffman, Winifred S. Park, J. W. F. Combs, Howard Wilson and Wayne Kessel.

Moose Lease Building

Dr. J. M. Harman, Governor of the Loyal Order of Moose No. 358 which was recently organized in Moorefield, announces that the lodge has leased the K. B. Ruddle building on Main and Washington street for a club room and lodge hall. The building is to be completely renovated and modernized and will be ready for occupancy by May 11.

Snider Brothers, Keyser, will have charge of the repairs. When finished the lower floor will be made into a club room for the more than 100 members who have joined and the second floor will contain a lodge room which can be used for dances and affairs for officials of the lodge.

J. M. Harrison, who has a lodge room in the building, will rent from the lodge.

Seek Better Streets

Mayor J. Harry Dolan announces that the town of Moorefield is making every effort to have the state road commission pave the strip of road on both sides of the hard surface. The center of town is paved from curb to curb but on Winchester avenue, and other streets there is a strip which is not completely hard surfaced.

Because of this strip, the streets cannot be kept clean and mud gathers which, in dry weather, makes a lot of dust.

On some streets the road extends from sidewalk to sidewalk and on others from curb to curb. Where there are grass plots with curbs the paving will reach only to the curb and on other streets, it will extend to the sidewalk.

Mayor Dolan conferred with W. H. Schimmel, superintendent for District 5, of which Moorefield is a part, and Mr. Schimmel assured him that he would do all in his power to see that this road is completed.

Reds Defeat Cubs and Ohio River Flood

Reds Pound Out 6 to 1 Victory as Water Laps at Diamond

Two Three-Run Innings Keep Champs' String of Wins Intact

Teams Take Field Hour Earlier To Escape High Water

Cincinnati, April 22 (AP)—Continuing their undefeated and error-free record, the Reds beat the Cardinals 6 to 1 today, pounding out a 6 to 1 victory behind Bucky Walters' seven-run first inning as water lapped into the outfield.

The Reds' first scoring came in the fifth when, after Lombardi walked and Walters lined to bring home his battery-mate, Bucky Walters uncorked a wild pitch to Bill Werber, and a moment later Harold Grier made a two base miff of the lead-runner's short fly to score Werber and the rookie left fielder.

The National League Champs then stepped off over relief hurler Clyde Satchel in the eighth. He got Gooden to line and Frank McCormick to pop, but Lombardi singled, Craft bled and Mike McCormick beat a tap to third to score Lombardi. Padgett threw wild to first, advancing the first two Bill Myers to second and Walters singled to complete the scoring and send Satchel to the showers.

Barry Brechen relieved and tossed out Werber to end the frame. Gey Enos Slaughter and Martin Garry got to Walters for extra-base hits. The lone Cardinal tally, a home run in the ninth on the right, was by Don Padgett.

Reds' totals: AB R H O A. Batters: 36. Runs: 6. Hits: 10. Errors: 0. Pitchers: 3. Innings: 9. Hits: 10. Runs: 6. Errors: 0. Total: 36. Runs: 6. Hits: 10. Errors: 0.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, April 22 (AP)—Sports Trail detours: E. C. Quigley, National League Supervisor of Umpires who knows baseball, football and basketball rules from left to right and back again, sees the stability of the baseball rules as a major factor in that sport's continued popularity.

"The sports fans consider it their game because they understand it," Quigley says. "Take football, for instance. Why don't they leave the rules alone? Something comes up during a season that proves costly to a team. If the school has enough influence it will get the rule changed so it won't happen again."

"Baseball rules are practically the same from year to year. Just one very minor change this year." Which is true enough. A man in the lockup for twenty years could step out and see a baseball game and know what it is all about. If he were to watch his first football or basketball game in twenty years he'd wonder when this new sport was invented.

Walter Johnson is a chip off the old block, but it's a political block, not a baseball block. The "Big Train" is county commissioner of Montgomery county, Maryland, which recalls to Earl C. Richardson of Garden City, Kas., that Johnson's father served as county commissioner of Montgomery, Kansas.

"Although Walter was born at Humboldt," Richardson says, "he spent most of the winters during the prime of his career at Coffeyville, Kas. My father's farm and his father's were just across the road from each other."

We don't know what a fellow has to do to get a little cooperation these days. A few days ago after Bob Feller's opening no-hitter, we penned a piece to the effect that Robert was baseball's Joe Louis and opposing batters would approach the plate with some temerity.

Then what happens? Robert gets knocked lower from his noles yesterday by the Detroit Tigers, again proving that the best way to forecast anything in sports is to sit the teeth very firmly and say nothing.

However, Feller loses nothing in our estimation simply because he had a bad day. It happens to the best of them. Walter Johnson didn't finish every game he started. Babe Ruth could strike out with the best of them. Joe Louis went out on strikes in his first Schmeling bout.

Earl Avirill's Pinch Single Wins For Detroit 6 to 5

Ninth Inning Blow Sends In Two Runs and Beats Chicago

Chicago, April 22 (AP)—Earl Avirill's pinch single in the ninth inning sent two runs home and gave the Detroit Tigers a 6 to 5 victory over the Chicago White Sox today.

Detroit, trailing by three runs, punched across single tallies in the seventh and eighth to set the stage for the winning run. In the ninth Frank Higgins and Dick Bartell singled, were advanced a base by Billy Sullivan's sacrifice, then scored on Avirill's blow.

Vallie Eaves, rookie right-hander starting his first big league game, was effective part of the way but wildness annulled his efforts. He walked twelve men in 7 2-3 innings and made two wild pitches.

Steel Worker Bowls 300 in Tournament

Detroit, April 22 (AP)—Angelo (Mike) Domenico, Canton, O., steel worker, fired the eighth perfect game in the forty-year history of the American Bowling Congress championships here today.

His 300 score came just a week after George Pallage, Akron, O., had shot the seventh perfect game in ABC annals. This was the first time that two 300's have been registered in one meet.

Domenico, carded the twelve straight strikes in the final canto of his doubles appearance with Andrew Lackney, ace of Canton. He got away to a mediocre start with 152 and increased the tempo to 192 in the second game. He attracted little attention even when he had threaded eight straight strikes.

PIRATE POWER-HITTER

By Jack Sords

Bob Elliott, hard-hitting Pittsburgh outfielder from the Pirates' Toronto farm, was expected to add power to the Pirates' run-making machinery this year. In 32 games with Pittsburgh last September he poked national league pitching for a .333 average.

Budget Seeded In Tournament

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 22 (AP)—Don Budge, the California tennis star, was seeded first tonight in the U. S. Open Tournament rankings, which included the defending champion, a former titlist and the 1939 runnerup. Play begins tomorrow.

Richard Skeen of Burbank, Cal., the defender, was placed in the No. 2 spot with Bruce Barnes of Austin, Texas. 1938 winner, in third place and Herman Peterson of Wilmington, Del., in fourth.

Budge was paired with Byrne Bauer, an amateur of White Sulphur Springs for the very first match at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, while Skeen was paired with Carl Boyer of White Sulphur Springs to lead off the lower bracket.

Thirty-nine entries, only four of them amateurs, came to this resort to open the fourth and largest annual $2,000 championship matches. A cloudless sky and temperatures in the mid-60's today bore promise of an auspicious start of the five-day play.

The ban placed on the tournament by the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, which ruled amateurs who play in the open cannot participate in USLTA-sanctioned events, was responsible for the small showing of the simon-pures.

The champion in the singles, if a professional, is awarded $400, the runnerup $200, the losing semi-finalists $120 each and the losing quarter-finalists $60 each. The losing eight in the round of sixteen get $20 each.

THE LAST OF THE GRENADIERS

The noncombatants from this sporting turmoil can supply you more trouble than all the athletes combined. Here, for example, is one who wants to know why we haven't given him and others more facts about one Robert Moses Grove and just how should Grove be rated with the great left-handers of all time.

Our rating of the top left-handers of all time would be in this order: 1. Lefty Grove. 2. Babe Ruth. 3. Carl Hubbell. 4. Herb Pennock. 5. Eddie Plank.

While Hubbell, Pennock and Plank had more team value, through the years, than Waddell had the gangling Babe was one of the great pitchers of all time when it came to the need of skill that makes for greatness.

Babe Ruth, a left-hander, led all sets on the winning side, but only for a matter of five years, while Grove is now in his 16th major league campaign. The Big Babe drew enough accolades from his bat. He might have broken all records through a full pitching career. But he wasn't around long enough on the mound to be rated with the five we named on top.

I happened to have the melancholy duty of batting against Waddell in 1888, being smart enough to keep both feet in the water bucket. In one of his final games, supposed to be all through, he pitched for the St. Louis Browns and struck out 16 Athletics. That's how good he was, hampered then with tuberculosis.

About Grove

Bob Grove opened his 21st year as a professional pitcher a few days ago with a two-hit shutout. He let fly his first professional pitch as a member of the Martinsburg team, Big Ridge League, back in 1920. Working with Baltimore for five years he won 108 games, losing only 36, in a fast league. Winning average—.750.

Pittsburgh Beats Chicago Cubs 9-5 At Forbes Field

Bowman Gets Credit for Win But Is Aided by Mace Brown

Pittsburgh, April 22 (AP)—Pittsburgh finally opened its 1940 National League season at home today, beating the Chicago Cubs 9 to 5 on soggy Forbes Field before 10,461 fans.

Joe Bowman, whose father, Joseph Bowman, Sr., died yesterday in Kansas City, received credit for the Pirates' triumph, although he was replaced in the seventh by fireman Mace Brown.

Six errors marred the game. Pittsburgh making two in the first inning to help Chicago score a run. The Cubs took command in the fourth when, with two out, Bob Elliott doubled, Ray Mueller walked, Pep Young doubled to score his two mates and Bowman singled sending Young home.

Chicago: AB R H O A. Batters: 36. Runs: 5. Hits: 10. Errors: 6. Pitchers: 3. Innings: 9. Hits: 10. Runs: 5. Errors: 6. Total: 36. Runs: 5. Hits: 10. Errors: 6.

LaSalle Hi Bows To Hyndman 5 to 4

LaSalle high school baseball team outlast Hyndman high at Hyndman yesterday but the tossers of Coach Bob Ziler bowed by a 5 to 4 score as the home team came through with the winning run in the last half of the seventh, on two walks, an error and G. Holler's second hit of the game.

Kiduff pitched good ball for LaSalle until he went into a wild streak in the final frame. He was the leading LaSalle slugger with a double and triple. E. Holler hurled for Hyndman and went the route.

Moorefield Hi Nine Remains Undefeated

Moorefield, W. Va., April 22—Coach Fred "Wack" Clark's Moorefield High Yellow Jackets, who in their last complete game whipped Franklin, 7-5 for their second straight baseball victory, will go to Circleville Friday and entertain Peersburg Saturday in contests this week. In their opener, the Jackets noosed out Mathias 11-10.

Early last week, Moorefield and Peersburg played for three innings but the game was called on account of rain with the Jackets leading 3-1. During the period, Bobby Bean held the Viking stickmen to one hit while Moorefield nacked the offerings of Ray Hill for six bingles.

Against Franklin, Lester Barne struck out 16 over a seven-inning stretch. He was relieved by Billy Vetter in the eighth. Franklin made six scattered hits while Moorefield collected a dozen off Marchmont Mitchell.

How to Get THE BEST GASOLINE BUY For Your Money

DON'T shop around. Do this. Go to your nearest Betholine-Richfield dealer. Tell him to "fill it up." Choose Betholine, Richfield or Rover. You'll be sure of getting a leader in its price class, and you can be certain that your Betholine-Richfield dealers prices meet competition.

BETHOLINE—the famous Benol Blend—weighs more and contains thousands more power units per gallon than any gasoline—gives you more power and more mileage than any gasoline.

RICHFIELD—the high Octane Gasoline—backed by a guarantee that no regular priced gasoline exceeds Richfield in any worthwhile feature.

SPORTS SPUTTERING

By WALTER L. JOHNS
Central Press Sports Editor

New York, April 22.—With the very able assistance of Mr. Frank Menke, the demon publicist for the Kentucky Derby, we give you the following facts and fancies re the historic horse race at Churchill Downs, Louisville, May 4.

Bimelech, Colonel Bradley's latest "B" horse, is the favorite, followed by Andy K. Moland, Carrier Pigeon, Robert E. Lee, Roman Flag, Flight Commany, Royal Cru-hadr and Victory Born. . . . Purely as a guess, we're putting our eggs in Andy K's basket. . . . This will be the sixty-sixth running of the Derby. . . . The race is run at Churchill Downs and is over the mile and one-quarter distance. . . . Winner last year was Johnstown. . . . First Kentucky Derby was run in 1875 when Aristides won by a length in a field of fifteen starters.

Net to winner in first race was $2,850. . . . Net to winner this year will be $65,675. . . . Plus, of course, the $5,000 Gold Trophy, awarded by Churchill Downs. . . . Approximately 75,000 or more persons are expected to jam Louisville for the event. . . . The track measurements are one mile with a quarter-mile chute. . . . Length of home stretch from the turn to the finish line is 1,100 feet. . . . Width is 115 feet at start of Derby and eighty feet at finish line. . . . Track record for the Derby is 2:01 4-5 set by Twenty Grand in 1931. . . . There have been twenty-six fillets in the Derbies. . . . Last year, for the first time, the $1 win place and show tickets were sold on Derby Day only in special fifty-cent bleacher section. . . . Minimum price of other parts of track is $2.

El Chico, winter book favorite last year, finished way back and since has been destroyed. . . . Total mileage wagered last year was $1,674,599, not the highest, but highest in several years. . . . Distance of first Derbies was a mile and a half, changed in 1896. . . . There have been 6,709 nominations in the sixty-five Derbies. . . . Average number of starters is ten. . . . The Derbies have been won by fifty-seven colts, seven geldings and one filly, the latter Regret in 1915.

Colonel Bradley is owner of the most winners, four. . . . Two jockeys have been on the most winners, three—Earl Sande and Isaac Murphy. . . . Bay-colored horses have won thirty of the Derbies, chestnuts twenty-one, browns ten and blacks four. . . . Johnstown, 1939 winner had post position No. 5.

A total of 127 horses were nominated for the race this year, but perhaps not more than ten or fifteen will start. . . . Nominating fee is $25 with an additional $500 on day of race for starting. . . . Bimelech, the favorite, made six starts last year and finished first each time. . . . He won a total of $135,090. . . . Andy K won $43,360. . . . More than $200,000 was spent this year by the Downs to improve the historic oval for the race. . . . Twenty thousand customers can be housed in the bleacher section, where seats sell for fifty cents. . . . Hotel accommodations as usual will be at a premium with $5 a nominal fee even in private homes for one night. . . . Fans going to the Derby are urged to take the street car after arriving in Louisville.

Derby Not Always Present Distance

Louisville, Ky., April 22 (AP)—From the beginning of the Kentucky Derby in 1875 through 1895, the Derby distance was one and a half miles. Then, in 1896, the distance was reduced to one and a quarter miles and has remained so since that time.

When the Derby was run over the mile and a half route, Spokane set a record in 1889 by covering the distance in 2:34 1-2.

Beall Hi School Baseball Team To Start Thursday

Coach Finzel Works Out Squad, Delayed by Bad Weather

Prostburg, April 22.—With the first game only three days away, baseball practice at Beall High got under way today under the direction of Coach Eddie Finzel.

Last week's downpour prevented any drills and Finzel will have to work overtime to get his squad in some kind of shape before Thursday's bid-offer with the Prostburg State College Junior Varsity on Beall's field.

According to Finzel, the squad will include a half-dozen holdovers—Blair, pitcher; Burkett and Dyer, infielders; Bob Haney, catcher, and Lewis and Leatherman, outfielders. The local nine will play 13 games with all but two of them in the Tri-State Interscholastic Conference. The Prostburg State Jayvees will be played twice in non-conference tussles.

Prostburg's Junior Varsity outfit, Ridsley and Paw Paw are newcomers to offset the loss of Oakland High and Keyser, which have dropped baseball this spring.

In the conference, Beall will oppose Ridgeley, Allegany, Port Hill, LaSalle and Hyndman on a home-and-home basis while one contest with Paw Paw, on the latter's field has been arranged.

Last year, Beall won four of 11 skirmishes, defeating Hyndman 16-0 and Oakland 8-4 after losing its first three games to Oakland 9-7, Port Hill 3-1 and LaSalle 5-4. Losses to Port Hill 8-6 and Allegany 13-2 followed and after scoring 7-6 over Allegany, the Finzelmens rounded out their campaign by losing to Hyndman 6-0 and Keyser 5-4, and then upsetting Keyser's champs in their final contest 4-3. The schedule:

April 26—Prostburg Jayvees, home
April 28—Ridgeley, home
May 4—Paw Paw, away
May 7—Ridgeley, away
May 8—Prostburg Jayvees, away
May 10—Port Hill, home
May 14—LaSalle, away
May 17—Port Hill, away
May 20—Hyndman, home
May 22—Allegany, home
May 24—Hyndman, away
May 31—LaSalle, home

Feller Lets off Steam

Bob Feller let out a bit of steam recently over an article which quoted him as saying he would win thirty games this season. "Here's another guy who says I told him I would win thirty games," he declared, "Guess I might just as well wrap up my uniform and go home if it's that easy. This guy quotes me all over the paper, and yet I haven't seen him this year. What is this now?"

Recently the speed of a tuna fish was tested at Liverpool, Nova Scotia, with the speedometer indicating 44 miles per hour on the first run.

Funeral Notice

WEAVER—Scott Winfield, 78, who died Sunday morning at 1 o'clock from illness of 2 months at the home of his daughter Mrs. Ray Simons, 721 Oldwood Road, where friends will be received. There will be a short service at 10 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, after which there will be a service held at the Mt. Union Christian Church in Gettysburg, Pa., at 2:30. The Rev. Thomas G. Galt and Rev. J. P. Dawson will officiate. Interment will be in Mt. Union Cemetery, Everett, Pa. Arrangements by Walter Funeral Service. 4-21-11-T-N

Cord of Thanks

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us following the death of our dear son, Lafayette Wilson Robinson Jr., who died Sunday, April 22, 1940. We wish to thank the Rev. Bragg and the Masonic Order for their kind words and the floral tributes and loved cars for the funeral. MR. & MRS. L. W. ROBINSON. 4-23-11-T-N

We take this means of expressing our appreciation to our friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement. The death of our son, Lafayette Wilson Robinson Jr., was a great loss to us. We wish to thank the Rev. Bragg and the Masonic Order for their kind words and the floral tributes and loved cars for the funeral. MR. & MRS. L. W. ROBINSON. 4-23-11-T-N

Ryan Hits Back At Radcliffe's Campaigners

Attacks Reilly And Prendergast For 'Low' Tactics

The Radcliffe campaign in Allegheny county has reached a new low, even for politics. Edward J. Ryan, chairman of the Bruce-for-Senator committee in the county, charged last night.

Ryan, Cumberland and Frostburg attorney, said that the Bruce forces "had hoped and expected that the present contest would be conducted on a high plane and without resort to personalities and mud-slinging."

Attacks Radcliffe Supporters. "We still propose to conduct Mr. Bruce's campaign for the high office of United States senator in a proper and dignified manner," he went on, but added that some of the statements made by "certain local supporters of Senator Radcliffe" demanded answer.

Ryan in a broadcast address, expressed hope that in "the balance of the campaign it will not be necessary for fellow-members of the Democratic party, all of whom should be behind the successful nominee, to stir other members of that party, or to make statements about either candidate which are absolutely untrue."

Then, the Bruce backer proceeded to wade into statements made last week by Michael P. Prendergast, county chairman of the Radcliffe forces, and Simon F. Reilly, Cumberland attorney.

"Venting Spleen"

Hitting an informal note, Ryan referred to the pair as "Mike" and "Si" throughout the address. The speaker charged that the "real truth" back of Prendergast's opposition to Bruce "is that Mike is disgruntled because his former schoolmate, Governor O'Connor, did not appoint him a county commissioner when Mr. Matheny died, and he is now venting his spleen on Howard Bruce."

In answer to Prendergast's charge that five of the Bruce delegates to the state convention were opposed to Bruce in 1938, Ryan pointed out that Bruce was not a candidate for office in 1938, nor has he ever been a candidate for office prior to the present primaries.

"However, Mr. Bruce did support Governor O'Connor in 1938, and three of the Bruce delegates also supported Governor O'Connor, while four of them supported Mayor Jackson."

"Ordinary Gratitude"

"Mike, himself, supported Governor O'Connor, and so did a number of the Radcliffe delegates. These gentlemen were glad to have Mr. Bruce's support of Governor O'Connor in 1938, and without that support Governor O'Connor would not have been nominated so that ordinary gratitude would seem to require them to support Mr. Bruce at this time — or at least not try to vilify him."

To Prendergast's claim that Bruce was affiliated with the Bartlett-Hayward Company when it built a gas plant at Chilum, Md., in 1938 and failed to use union labor, Ryan retorted that Bruce "sold his interest in the Bartlett-Hayward Company in 1927, more than ten years before the gas plant was built at Chilum."

"Bad Taste"

Concluding his rebuttal of the Prendergast statements, Ryan said that "Mike also refers to the attorney-general of the state, one of the judges of the Peoples court in Cumberland, the Democratic national committeewoman for Maryland, the chairman of the Upper Potomac River Commission, who is a member of his own family, a member of the board of county commissioners for Allegheny county, the president of the Young Democratic Clubs of Allegheny county."

Crash Drivers Set Free

Two drivers involved in a collision Saturday night were acquitted of careless driving charges yesterday in police court.

The two drivers were Roy S. Teter, 313 Pa. street, and William R. Seibert, of 221 Carroll street. Both men were arrested by Officer Robert V. Chisholm following a crashup at Pa. and Lee streets. Passengers in both cars escaped injury.

Following a presentation of facts in the case, Magistrate Frank A. Perdue said he was unable to determine responsibility.

Franklin B. Christman, of Bedford county, Pa., arrested Sunday night for exceeding fifty miles an hour on the Bedford road, was fined $10 and costs in Trial Magistrate's Court. He was arrested by Sgt. James T. Knight, of the State Police.

Magazines in Attic Feed Flames

Firemen snuffed out a fire in the attic of the home of Mrs. Ralph Roy, 3 Decatur street, late yesterday afternoon. A quantity of old magazines burned.

Smoke was pouring from the attic window when Companies No. 1 and 4 arrived. Chemicals were used to extinguish the blaze. Cause of the fire could not be determined. The loss was reported small.

'Clash' Avoided In Frostburg

Bruce Forces Change Their Meeting Place

The axiom that "politics makes strange bedfellows" won't be proved true in Frostburg tonight after all.

Originally, Senator George L. Radcliffe, campaigning for re-election, was scheduled to hold a reception in the lobby of the Gunter hotel at 7:30 o'clock tonight, while backers of his opponent, Howard Bruce, were holding a pos-wow in the ballroom.

But W. Earle Coker, member of Bruce's county campaign committee, announced last night that "as a courtesy to Senator Radcliffe," the Bruce workers had moved their meeting to the American Legion Home.

Senator Radcliffe, due to arrive here early this morning from Hagerstown, has a full day ahead of him.

His schedule includes a tour of the county, a reception here as well as at Frostburg and a radio broadcast, scheduled for 6:30 p. m.

A change in plans will not permit the Senator to visit Eckhart and LaVale Thursday morning on his return from Garrett county. Instead, he will meet Eckhart citizens at Frostburg tonight, and will visit the LaVale fire station en route from Frostburg to Cumberland, about 8:30 p. m.

Council Refuses To Hear Norris

WPA Unionist Calls Mass Meeting

Rebuffed yesterday at City Hall when he tried to address the mayor and city council on the subject of unemployment, C. K. Norris, secretary of the Cumberland unit of the Workers Alliance, today was formulating plans for a mass meeting tonight at the Canada House Company hall on North Mechanic street.

City officials yesterday voted down Norris's request to be heard at council meeting by a vote of four to one. (Commissioner James Orr dissenting). Earlier, a communication written by Norris was duly read by Council Clerk S. K. Grimmer. The letter requested a hearing on Cumberland's unemployment problem.

Commenting on the letter, Mayor Irvine said plans were now under way to set up new WPA jobs and that city officials and WPA executives conferred last week regarding the situation. New jobs will be started as soon as possible, the mayor said.

At the present time, City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer is preparing surveys to submit to the mayor and council regarding costs and other facts for a city-wide street improvement project and a sewer system for the Bedford road area.

When Norris asked to be heard from the floor, Commissioner Thomas P. Conlon said there was little point in going into the subject again since Norris had been heard on a former occasion and since the city is doing everything in its power to put men to work.

Conlon moved Norris to be denied a hearing and after the motion passed Mayor Irvine said "we are doing everything we can."

Successive attempts by Norris to be heard were repulsed, with the Alliance secretary inquiring if the council was fascistic.

Police Charge Dealer Bought Junk From Boys

Detective Frank Gaffney and Sgt. Raymond Johnson yesterday arrested a Cumberland junk dealer on a charge of purchasing junk from minors.

David N. Miller, of 111 East Mary street, will be given a hearing Thursday at 9 a. m. for purchasing junk from a 14-year-old Roberts street boy and a 16-year-old Offutt street youth.

Miller was released under $15 bond. The two boys will be given hearings Saturday at 10 a. m. in Juvenile Court.

Burke Burglar Pleads Guilty, Gets 4 Years

Extra Year Added For Jail-Break; Others Sentenced

A 21-year-old Pennsylvanian was sentenced to four years in the Maryland penitentiary yesterday as criminal trials opened in Circuit court.

The sentence was imposed on Raymond Louis Priel, formerly of Verona, Pa., after he pleaded guilty to charges of burglary and jail-breaking. He was given three years on the burglary charge and one on the jail-breaking charge.

Priel was accused of looting the Washington street home of Edmund S. Burke, president of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, of jewelry, clothing and other articles valued at more than $1,000.

Sawed Way Out of Jail. A few weeks after being jailed on this charge, he and two companions sawed their way out of the county jail but were recaptured after only a few hours of freedom.

Four other persons were given prison terms—all one-year sentences in the House of Correction. They were Harvey O. Coleman, of Elk Garden, W. Va., who pleaded guilty to four charges of forgery; Albert Taylor, Cumberland negro, who admitted taking a watch from a sleeping man in the Queen City station waiting room; Ralph Hentlings, who pleaded guilty to one count of an indictment charging wife-beating; and Ruhl Alderton, 30-year-old ex-convict of Green Ridge, who was convicted of larceny and receiving stolen goods.

In Trouble Again. Alderton, just released from the Maryland Penitentiary last December, was accused of misappropriating $35 in rent money he was given to deliver to his aunt, Mrs. Myrtle Clinegman.

The defendant, represented by Attorney J. Hodge Smith, pleaded not guilty but was convicted by Associate Judge William A. Huster after he waived a jury trial.

Prosecution witnesses said that Mrs. Esther Appold, of 619 Baker street, where Alderton was living, gave him the $35 to deliver to Mrs. Clinegman. Instead of making delivery, they charged, Alderton used it for a jaunt to Oldtown, Hagerstown, and other points. He was finally nabbed in Pennsylvania and returned to stand trial.

Legal Problem. Attorney Smith argued that Alderton was not guilty of embezzlement because he was not acting as an agent for Mrs. Clinegman. On this point Judge Huster upheld him and found Alderton not guilty of embezzlement.

No larceny was involved, the attorney contended, because Alderton took the money from no one; it was given to him. And if the money was not stolen, Alderton could not be guilty of receiving stolen goods, he concluded.

Judge Huster ruled otherwise, however, and the ex-farmer was given the year's sentence.

Brothers Plead Not Guilty. Two young brothers, Joseph and John Sanders, of Monongahela City, Pa., entered not guilty pleas to charges of burglary and are scheduled to be tried before the court this morning. The brothers, represented by Attorneys F. Brooke Whiting and Leslie J. Clark, are accused of breaking the display window of a jewelry store and taking several watches.

The defendants pleaded guilty to jail-breaking, along with Priel, and John Sanders entered guilty pleas to three charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods. Two similar charges against him were dismissed by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris.

Father Paroled. Franklin Theodore Begle, father of three children, was paroled for three years after he pleaded guilty to embezzling $70 from the Royale Dairy, where he was employed as a truck driver.

Begle was ordered to repay the money within six months, refrain from drinking, and support his family.

William F. Emerick, who pleaded guilty to the simple assault count of an indictment charging assault with intent to murder, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction. Sentence was suspended, however, on condition he pay $50 to the victim for medical expenses by July, as well as the costs of the case. Emerick was represented by Attorney Edward J. Ryan.

Three More Arrested. Meanwhile, three persons against whom indictments were returned were taken into custody this morning and entered guilty pleas.

Dayton L. Divebliss, alias Dayton Poole, and John Puhalla entered guilty pleas to a charge of burglarizing an Oldtown road store.

Arberry Wheeler, colored, pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny and receiving stolen goods. He is accused of stealing aluminum from the Beerman junk yard, along with Richard M. Clark and John Snyder, who had previously pleaded guilty.

Delton Barb, who pleaded guilty to a paternity charge, was jailed pending the furnishing of bond to insure monthly payments for the support of the child.

Kimble To Address Townsend Club

State Senator Robert B. Kimble, candidate for Congress, will address a public meeting of Townsend Club No. 2 in the Odd Fellows building on Virginia avenue Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

Cumberland was strangely unfamiliar yesterday afternoon. The street scenes looked unreal—like a technicolor movie.

It was most puzzling until we realized what was the matter. The sun was shining!

It was the same old Cumberland all right. It looked strange only because so many days had passed since the sunshine last splashed on its red brick walls and brought out the highlights and the shadows and the Easter bonnets.

The fact that the air had been washed so clean by the heavy rains may have added to the illusion. The bath the city's buildings received probably didn't hurt them any either. Let us hope, however, that Mother Nature's spring cleaning has ended.

A local man made a couple of important resolutions yesterday. First, he decided to be very careful in walking up and down steps. Also in running a washing machine—if he had a washing machine.

Second, he resolved to be more thoughtful of the little wife—particularly in leaving the bathroom neat and clean after shaving and such.

It all came about as the result of a visit to the doctors' office for treatment of a minor ailment.

The consultation with the doctor was quite brief, and the caller didn't learn much from it he didn't already know. But his wait was somewhat lengthy, and during it he found much to engage his attention.

There were four women sitting in the reception room when the man breezed in. There was that awkward pause in the spirited conversation as he entered. And as he settled down he could almost hear their mental speculations as to what ailed him.

A little embarrassed at his presence in that "no man's land," the man picked up a magazine, intending to catch up on last year's reading.

Strangely enough, however, it wasn't a magazine of 1939 vintage; it was the current issue of a popular weekly. But interesting as were the articles, stories and cartoons, he couldn't concentrate on them.

The distraction of the noise made by four women more or less shouting across the room at one another was one thing. And then he found the conversation interesting—if a little morbid and alarming.

Chief subject of discussion was catastrophes that had befallen the patients and their friends.

The conversation led off with a gruesome account of a washing machine mishap, which had happened that morning. No details were missed; the poor woman's injuries were outlined in full down to the eighteen stitches that were taken in the arm that was caught in the wringer.

From there, the discussion covered a variety of mishaps that had happened over an indeterminate period. The chief complaint was falls—falls down church steps, cellar steps, all sorts of steps, not to mention just simple falls for no reason at all.

There was a note of sympathy in the accounts, but the man thought he detected a note of that perverse trait of human nature to gloat over such things.

At any rate, he decided to be more careful.

Then, one of the good ladies, apparently a medical expert in her own right, launched forth into a discussion of more complicated ailments, referring in a casual manner to erysipelas, insulin shock, the cause and cure of diabetes, the pancreatic tract and kindred matters.

The mere man was properly impressed; in fact, he was afraid his mouth was somewhat agape. And he wondered why she was in the doctor's office.

The man soon found out. The woman, somewhat on the stout side, soon turned her attention and her tongue to the matter of the inconsiderateness of men in general, her husband in particular.

She had failed to disclose the exact nature of her ailment, although she had referred to a fall she had had down some steps. She also indicated she was on a diet.

But the main thing seemed to be that she had to work so hard cleaning up the bathroom after the men of the house had used it.

Her husband leaves the mirror splattered, splashes the towel over the floor, drapes the towel over the door instead of hanging it on the rack, uses her comb and fails to put it back—and generally leaves things in something of a mess.

So she was in to see the doctor. Bathroom-itis, it appeared.

The man was properly sympathetic. He supposed that he blushed a little, remembering some of his own shortcomings. And noting the persecuted wife's presence in the doctor's office and recalling his limited budget, with which a doctor's bill would play havoc, he resolved to leave things in better shape. He wouldn't want his wife to get in such a condition.

School Bus Runs Over Boy's Leg, Lad Escapes without Fracture

Twenty-year-old Curtis Cochran told Allegheny hospital nurses yesterday that its no joke to have a schoolbus run over your right leg. And that's what happened to the Braddock Farms boy yesterday morning while he was waiting for the bus with a group of other pupils.

Curtis said another boy jostled him just as the school bus arrived. He fell and the wheel of the bus passed over his right left leg just below the knee.

A passing motorist was hailed and the boy was brought to the hospital. Although no fracture was found, attendants placed the youth under observation. There is a possibility the boy has an injured knee, they said.

Another casualty was brought to the hospital last night. The victim was Mrs. Mary Dawson, who broke her right wrist when she fell in her home at 321 Davidson street. She was treated and released.

Death of Infant

Ann Lee Paddelford, two-month-old daughter of Justin and Gertrude Paddelford, of LaVale, died yesterday in Allegheny hospital. The body was taken to Washington for cremation.

Mr. Paddelford is a Calanese chemist.

Requests for cab stands on Baltimore street were turned down yesterday by the Mayor and City Council following an investigation by Police Commissioner James Orr and Chief Oscar A. Eyerman.

While requests for cab stands were allowed in other sections of the city, the mayor and council stuck to their policy of doing everything possible to prevent traffic jams on Baltimore street.

Several months ago Cumberland trucking concerns cooperated with Chief Eyerman by routing trucks away from the downtown section as much as possible.

After turning down the request of the Astor Cab Company for cab stands at the Fort Cumberland and Algonquin hotels, the council suggested a stand on Washington street above Cumberland street as a possible substitute for the Algonquin Hotel stand. The Packard Cab company was denied a permit for a stand at 176 Baltimore street.

Permission was granted the Astor concern to establish stands on Decatur street at Allegheny hospital, at the Columbia avenue and Franklin street intersection, on the west side of Mechanic street south of Valley street, in the 700 block of Bedford street, and on Cresap street west of Oldtown road.

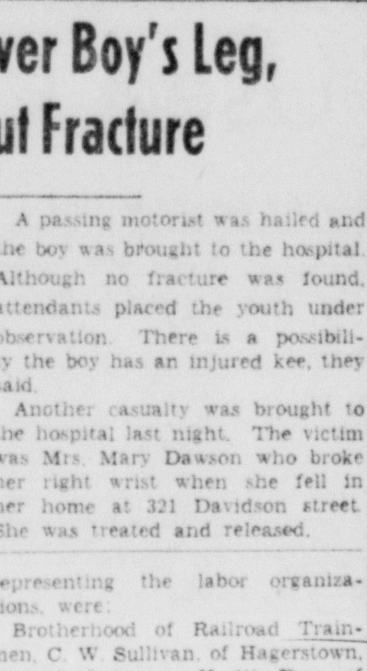

Dewey Shoemaker, of the Shoemaker Taxi Service, was granted permission to install a lock-box telephone at Laing and Virginia avenues.

Lieut. Falkenline Is Suspended

Baltimore, April 22. (P.)—Beverly Ober, superintendent of State Police, announced to the Associated Press tonight that Lieut. Niles G. Falkenline, commander of the Western Maryland district, was suspended today for "failure to follow rules and regulations."

Colonel Ober said he could not discuss the case further but that he probably would be in a position to make a statement some time tomorrow.

The man has a new sympathy and a new respect for the doctor, he reports.

Fugitive Found In Pittsburgh

Wanted For Still And Chicken Theft

Federal officers in Pittsburgh yesterday nabbed a 40-year-old Keyser, W. Va., man wanted by both federal and state authorities in West Virginia.

The man, Charles LeRoy Stroud, alias George Kerr, was nabbed by the United States marshal in Pittsburgh on a tip given him by United States Deputy Marshal Howard P. Loughrie, of Cumberland.

Stroud, sought since February, was using the name of George Kerr, in Pittsburgh.

Keyser authorities raided Stroud's home in February on an investigation of a chicken theft. In the raid, a quantity of illicit liquor was allegedly found, as well as the chickens, but Stroud escaped.

As a result, a federal grand jury for the northern district of West Virginia recently indicated him for possession of illicit liquor, while the Mineral county grand jury returned an indictment against him last week in the chicken theft.

Stroud waived extradition and is expected to be returned to Wheeling tomorrow to await trial in United States district court. It is expected that Mineral county authorities will place a detainer against him in order to hold him for the chicken-theft.

Stroud fled after the raid to Luke Loughrie said, and it was then that he started his search for him. The trial led into Pennsylvania, but several trips to nearby towns with William R. Harvey, former Allegheny county sheriff and now federal alcohol tax unit agent in West Virginia, proved fruitless.

The tip as to the fugitive's whereabouts came over the weekend, and Loughrie relayed it to Pittsburgh authorities, with the capture resulting.
